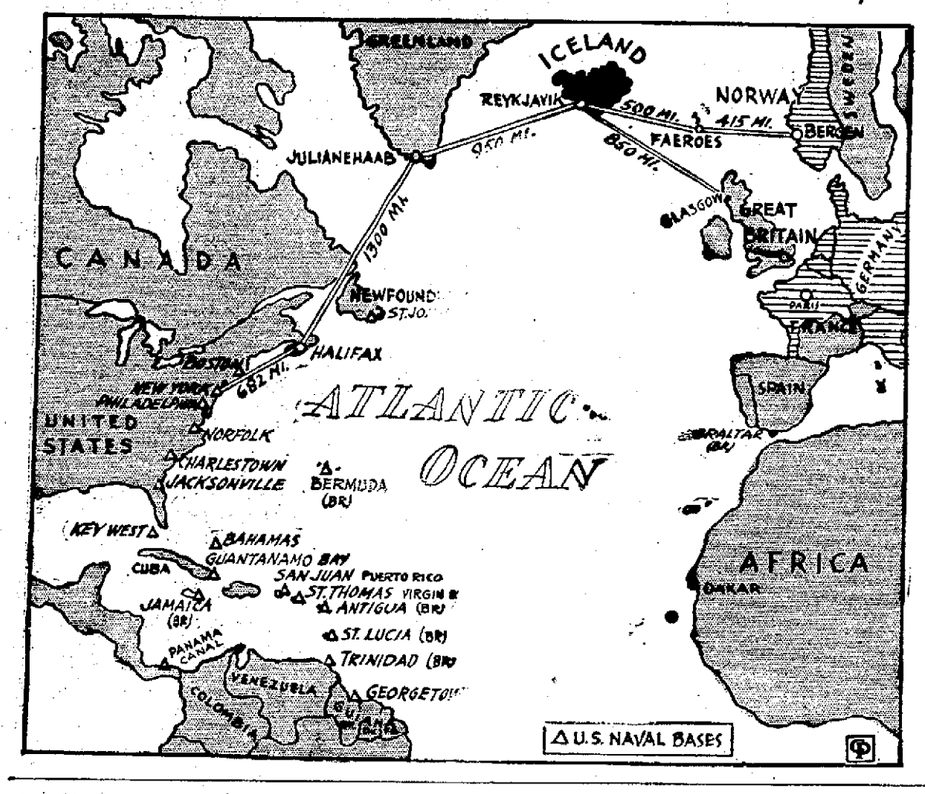
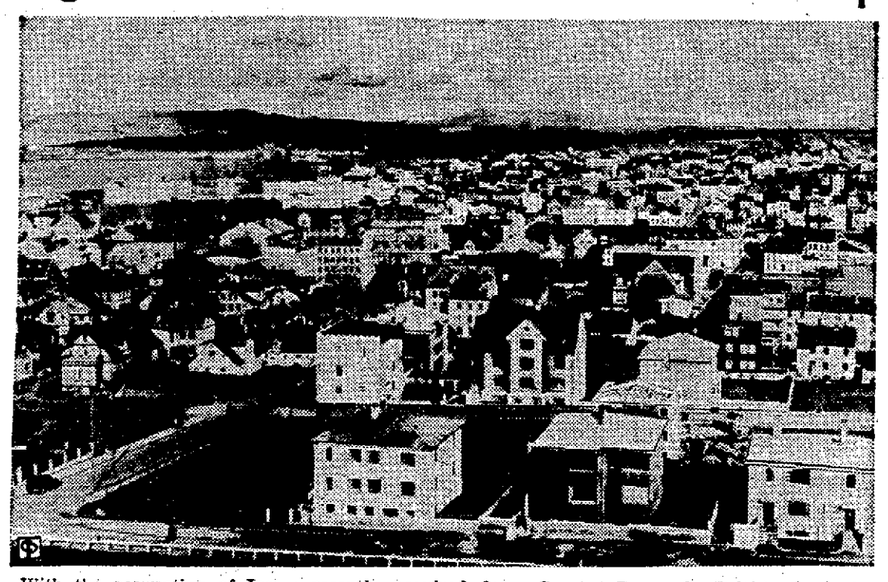
HOLD NAZIS ON 600-MILE FRONT

Navy Takes Over Iceland Defense, Brings U. S. Forces Nearer to Europe





With the occupation of Iceland, United States naval bases in the Atlantic now extend into the eastern hemisphere and within the war zone declared by Germany. The Central Press map at left shows the distances from Iceland to the British Isles and Nazi-occupied territory. Other U. S. naval bases recently acquired from Great Britain for the defense of the western hemisphere are shown, including Trinidad and British Guiana which were manned by U. S. troops simultaneous with the U. S. navy's occupation of Iceland. At right is a view of Reykjavik, capital of Iceland.

Since the Germans invaded Denmark, British forces have been stationed on the island, to prevent its seizure by the Nazis as a possible invasion take-off against Britain. No figures have been given out, but it is believed the American force there will eventually be about 80,000 men, plus strong naval forces.

Soviets Crush Fresh Thrusts Toward Moscow

Concede Germans Drive To Within 75 Miles of Leningrad, Claim 6,000 Killed in Trap; Hitler Army Says War 'On Schedule.'

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles said today that plans for American aid to Soviet Russia were proceeding rapidly and effectively.

(By Associated Press)

Soviet Red armies were reported holding the Germans at bay along a 600-mile front of river defenses today, out in front of the main Stalin line, and crushing repeated Nazi attempts to break through en route to Moscow.

A Russian war bulletin placed the scene of the heaviest fighting on a tight-stretched line running almost due north and south, between Ostrov, on the Latvian frontier, and Mogilev Podolski, on the Dnestr river at the Bessarabian border.

The communique said Soviet troops clashed with German tanks and motorized forces in the Ukraine sector of Novograd Volynski and, further south, struck in "a decisive counter-attack on the flank and rear of the enemy," annihilating two Nazi infantry regiments.

The Soviet high command said the Germans had been routed in a series of attempts to storm across the Dnieper river, in a drive toward Moscow, but conceded that on the northern front the Nazis had approached within 75 miles of Leningrad.

Blazing heat engulfed the entire battlefront.

Tersely, Adolf Hitler's field headquarters made this lone comment on the 17-day-old invasion:

"Operations on the eastern front are proceeding on schedule."

In past campaigns, German communiques have been similarly brief when huge-scale operations were in a fluid, developing state.

The Russians declared the Germans were suffering enormous casualties and that gains along the 2,000-mile front were slight.

* * *

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, reported 1,300 German troops were killed and wounded in a five-hour fight for a single village.

Tass asserted that 7,000 Nazis were killed and wounded and 1,500 others surrendered when Soviet tanks trapped a column of German infantry in a penetration of Russian lines.

The Red army's high command specifically mentioned only the destruction of some 6,000 German soldiers.

By contrast, the Berlin radio reported the capture of an additional 142,216 Russian prisoners between July 2 and 5, along with 584 Soviet tanks and armored cars.

Chancellor Hitler's field headquarters still made no claim to a break into the Stalin line, but DNB, the official German news agency, said Nazi troops stormed and captured a series of strongly-fortified bunkers at an undesignated point on the main Soviet defense system.

German military dispatches reported that the flower of the Nazi army flinging itself against the Stalin line was contending with every form of Russian trickery.

Sheriff and Judge Join In Anti-Tooting Drive

Against Horns

Councilman George Kyle . . . he'll introduce anti-tooting ordinance.

Sheriff F. E. Robinson . . . "tooting's a nuisance and a danger."

Probate Judge S. H. Cramer . . . "tooting's of 'epidemic proportions'."

Support Kyle's Move for Law on Auto Horns; Bates Dissents.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson and Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer today threw their weight behind Councilman George C. Kyle's proposed anti-horn tooting ordinance, but Police Chief Meade K. Bates came up with a number of arguments against the move.

Cramer, agreeing not only with Kyle's plan, but the suggestion of Auto Club Secretary Frank Beverstock that all drivers voluntarily pledge themselves to drive 500 miles without using a horn, to discipline themselves in caution and courtesy, asserted that unnecessary horn-blowing in Mansfield had reached "epidemic proportions."

He warned, however, that any anti-horn ordinance should be carefully drawn so that it would not prohibit the use of a horn when necessary.

However, he said, much of the present noise of automobile horns is unnecessary.

"Horns blown by young people returning from parks and passing my home keeps me and my neighbors awake," he declared. Judge Cramer recommended that an educational campaign be instituted to show the harm done by unnecessary tooting.

Sheriff Robinson, who lives only a block from Central park, one of the meccas for horn-blowers, could

Appoints Dr. Wild As Commissioner Of Health Here

Dr. William B. Wild was appointed city health commissioner by the Mansfield board of health last night to serve the unexpired term of the late Dr. R. C. Rehder who was killed in an auto accident June 23 in Nebraska.

Wild's appointment was announced today by Mayor William J. Locke. This act on the part of the city board also makes him Richland county health commissioner. The Richland county health board had previously appointed Wild as commissioner pending action of the city board.

Locke said that three other applications for the position were considered.

Wild served as assistant to Dr. Rehder since last November. Before coming to Mansfield, he was coroner of Holmes county.

Wild was appointed acting city commissioner following the death of Dr. Rehder, and as county commissioner on June 28, pending action of the city board.

The new health commissioner was graduated from the University of Arkansas in 1934. While serving as coroner of Holmes county, he also was in private practice and assisted at Holmes county hospital. Dr. Wild was born in Mariann, Ark.

READY FOR POT AND PAN DRIVE

Committees Named to Handle Campaign to Collect Old Aluminum for Defense.

Organization of a Mansfield and Richland county committee to supervise the collection of old aluminum pots and pans to be used for national defense purposes was made yesterday at a meeting in the Municipal building. The drive is to be held on two days, July 24 and 25.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the Richland county commissioners, and Mayor William J. Locke were named honorary chairmen of the drive. Mitchell will supervise the collection of scrap aluminum in the county while Mayor Locke directs the work in the city.

Committees for the collection and transportation of the metal and one to publicize the campaign were named at the meeting. Most of the men serving on the committees are representatives of city organizations volunteering their aid.

Mayor Locke announced that James F. Carrigan had been named city chairman to coordinate efforts within the city Mitchell said he would name a county chairman before the collection group's next

One Panama police officer was said to have been wounded in the battle and several Germans were said to have been taken prisoner. According to reports received here the area in which the battle occurred is settled by Germans, many of whom were described as strongly pro-Nazi.

Interpreted as Blow At Pre-Invasion Move

Observers Wonder If Roosevelt Order To Keep Sea Lanes Free Means 'Shoot' In Hostile Action.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The occupation of Iceland by United States armed forces was described in administration circles today as a step intended to thwart a vast German pincers movement on Great Britain's indispensable supply lines.

This movement, extending from the equator to the arctic, would have as its immediate objective the cutting off of Britain from all overseas supplies, including lease-lend shipments, but an informed military authority pointed out that an operation of such magnitude constituted a logical prelude to an attempt at invading England.

Should an invasion be successful, he said, the Reich would be in position for a pincers campaign against the western hemisphere — the threat President Roosevelt mentioned yesterday when he notified congress that United States naval forces had landed in Iceland as the occupation vanguard.

Administration supporters generally seemed to take this long range view, for they spoke of the occupation as a defense precaution and endorsed it as such. Opposition legislators voiced fear that the action might lead to war.

The complete text of President Roosevelt's special message to congress on the occupation of Iceland will be found on page 8.

GARRISON: Iceland Likely To Get Top Overseas Force

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Iceland, the nation's newest defense outpost, appeared likely today to claim one of the largest United States garrisons overseas—if not the largest.

Latest army figures fix the total of present overseas garrisons at 118,700 troops. The disposition of these forces was not revealed, but Hawaii, presumably the most strongly manned post, had 40,000 soldiers in May for maneuvers.

Official information on the size of the British force now occupying Iceland comes under the head of a military secret, but seamen who touched recently at the island estimated it at about 80,000 men.

Informed opinion was that the American garrison would be at least equal to the strength of the British force it will eventually relieve.

The composition of the landing force was unknown, but the general assumption here was that U. S. marines formed the bulk of it. However, President Roosevelt, in his exchange of communications with Prime Minister Herman Jonasson of Iceland, spoke of sending "troops"—language which some interpreted as meaning that army units would prove the eventual garrison—or most of it.

In this connection, it was recalled that General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, disclosed on June 23 that a special force of soldiers and marines had been created for "task" missions —special operations of a specific nature outside of the continental United States.

COOPERATE: British Troops Under U. S. Control On Isle

(By International News Service)

LONDON—British troops will remain at Iceland for the time being at least, British military authorities declared today, but these forces will be under the supreme command of the United States commander there.

Revealing details of the arrangements effected following occupation of Iceland by American naval forces, officials in London declared that the British troops will be withdrawn from Iceland as "the exigencies of the situation dictate."

They added the British navy will continue to use Iceland as a base whenever necessary—subject to the command of the American admiral on the spot.

All Britain jubilantly hailed the American naval occupation of Iceland on grounds it will free British forces for action elsewhere.

A British foreign office spokesman declared:

"It is big news and welcome news. It is regarded here as one of the most important events for some time past."

The authoritative British Press association said: "It is clear the United States will maintain an adequate force necessary for full protection of Iceland."

STORM SKIPS CITY, HITS OHIO

Five Killed, Property Damage High in State; Mansfield Has Only Trace of Rain.

A slashing wind and rainstorm that roared through Ohio late yesterday brought death to at least five persons and caused damage in unestimated thousands of dollars but left Mansfield intact.

The only evidence here of the state-wide squall was a noticeable drop in temperature and a trace of rain shortly before 5 p. m.

Breezes stirred by the high wind action in other parts of the state brought Mansfielders a promise of clearer and cooler weather for tonight.

The mercury in Mansfield dropped from a high of 88 to a low of 62 degrees yesterday with an average of 75 for the day. Sixteen-year average temperature was 72.4.

Around noon today, the mercury had climbed to only 72 adding statistical weight to the weatherman's prediction of cooler weather.

Although Mansfield was untouched by the electrical and rain storm, virtually all other parts of the state suffered.

Akron had its heaviest rain in the 87-year history of the weather

SEEKS RELEASE

Former Stock Exchange Head Up For Sing Sing Parole.

OSSINING, N. Y.—(AP)—Richard Whitney, once a symbol of integrity and power in the world of finance, appears before the state parole board today seeking release from Sing Sing prison.

The one-time head of the New York stock exchange, whose brokerage house went to the wall in a spectacular collapse in March, 1938, is serving a five to 10 year sentence on a charge of first degree larceny of customers' securities, to which he pleaded guilty.

On August 11, he will have served three years and four months, the legal minimum, less time off for good behavior. Whitney's job now is as clerk in the chief keeper's office. He is cell-assignment clerk, aids in keeping a tally count on the prisoners five times a day, an important post in prison administration, and has other clerical duties.

DENIED PAROLE

Justice Department Says Annenberg Loses Chance at Freedom.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— M. L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher serving a 3-year term for income tax evasion, has been denied a parole, justice department officials said today.

Annenberg would have been eligible for parole on July 21. He now stands little chance of being released before the expiration of his so-called "short term" on November 11, 1942. The short term makes allowance for time off for good behavior.

ALL QUIET ON ECUADOR FRONT

(By Associated Press)

QUITO, Ecuador — Ecuador's disputed southern frontier with Peru, scene of three days of sporadic patrol fighting, was reported quiet last night and early today but Ecuador's ministry of defense declared the Peruvians were digging trenches and moving up troops.

Ecuador was reported officially last night to have sent Peru a protest charging "unjustified and prepared aggression" along the upper Amazon jungle-land which both nations claim.

(Peru also was said to have drawn up a protest, placing the blame on Ecuador for the outbreaks. Peruvian sources said

Contract Controversy Halts Work At Dominion Electric

Nearly 400 employes of the Dominion Electric Manufacturing company today had stopped work as a result of a disagreement by one department with the company over terms of a union contract.

Approximately 120 members of the Platers, Polishers and Buffers union, local No. 39, AFL, stopped work yesterday, forming a picket line about the plant. A union spokesman said that the local asked for adjustments in the present union contract relating to a more frequent review of wage rates in the present contract.

Two hundred and eighty other workers refused to pass through the picket lines established by the Platers local. Among these were 14 members of the Machinists Lodge No. 453, another AFL organization at the plant, Roy Smith, financial secretary, said.

Organization of the workers affected by the strike was taking place today, according to R. D. Rust, machinist organizer for the AFL.

Approximately 200 new members are expected to join the group, Rust stated.

Officials at the plant would make no statement concerning the work stoppage.

SOVIETS HOLD GERMANS ALONG 600-MILE FRONT

Say Thrusts Toward Moscow Crushed, Admit Approach To Leningrad.

Fields of Soviet "corpses," it was said, would suddenly spring to arms and open a murderous fire on unwary German soldiers. Camouflaged Russian casemates let German panzer units roar by without betraying their presence, and then opened a terrific fire from the rear.

The Red army's high command, in reporting the rout of German troops attempting to cross the Dnieper river, on the central front, declared 35 heavy Nazi tanks and two infantry battalions were destroyed.

In the fields of the western Ukraine, the Moscow war bulletin said, two German regiments were wiped out.

On the Bessarabian front, the Russians said German and Rumanian troops had either been destroyed or "thrown back from Soviet territory" by a Red counter-attack.

The Soviet communique quoted prisoners as saying that Rumanian soldiers had been shot by their German allies for refusing to fight against the U. S. S. R.

Without giving details, the Germans reported that "pursuit of the enemy" was continuing on the road to Kiev, the capital of the Soviet Ukraine.

On the northern front, the Russians said terrific battles were raging, with Red troops fighting twin German drives from the north and southeast toward Leningrad, Russia's second biggest city.

Nazi reconnaissance pilots reported that aerial bombing by the Luftwaffe had partyzed Soviet traffic on the 1,200-mile railway line between Leningrad and the ice-free arctic port of Murmansk. The line was "gapped by huge craters in many places," they said.

Moscow asserted that German mechanized columns lunging through the Ostrov area northeast toward Leningrad had been stemmed by fierce Soviet resistance.

The Red army communique said huge losses were inflicted on other invasion columns knifing into the U. S. S. R. in the Kakisalmi sector, on the Karelian isthmus 75 miles north of Leningrad, and toward Kandalaksha, 150 miles south of Murmansk.

A Finnish communique said Finnish troops had penetrated Soviet territory at a number of points on the Karelian isthmus, with 400 Russians slain in a single battle.

British raiders pounded again overnight at the French coast and the key cities of industrial western Germany, following up daylight attacks.

The Luftwaffe raided southern and southeastern England during the night, concentrating on Southampton where considerable damage was caused.

Make New Attack On Occupied Area

LONDON —(INS)— Heavy British bombers, escorted by swarms of R. A. F. fighters, delivered another slashing attack against Nazi-occupied France today after hammering western Germany and the "invasion coast" during the night.

In the newest daylight attack, it was stated, the British planes successfully bombed a synthetic oil plant between Lens and Bethune and destroyed seven enemy fighting planes in aerial combats.

Five British fighters and one bomber were reported missing but two British pilots were said to be safe.

Last night and early this morning the R. A. F. rained bombs on western Germany, the "invasion coast" and other sections of occupied France.

The R. A. F. night attacks coincided with a sharp German raid on Southampton during which waves of Nazi planes dropped bombs on all sections of the south coast seaport, causing a number of casualties and widespread destruction. Scores were left homeless as their houses were reduced to rubble.

The burglar obtained a total of $24 from the three business places. The money was taken from pinball machines and music boxes in the East Side Night club. Fred Miller, Fifth ward councilman, proprietor of Miller Bros. cafe, reported that nothing was taken.

At the grocery store, operated by Everrd Penrose, the thief took some olives, bologna and a bottle of soft drink. Entrance to all three places was made by breaking windows near the locks and opening them.

J. P. Benedict, proprietor of the West Fourth street shop, told police that $19.50 was taken from pinball machines and the cash register.

ICELAND MOVE BALKS PINCERS

Occupation Seen as Blocking Pre-Invasion Strategy of Germans.

President Roosevelt's order to the navy to keep the sea lanes between Iceland and the United States "free of all hostile activity or threat thereof."

Inasmuch as part of this vast area has been a hunting ground for Nazi surface and subsurface raiders, the question arose whether the order meant "you my fire when ready, Gridley" where hostile sea action was encountered.

Another moot point was whether positive action of the Iceland variety might be expected in the future from the "substantial forces" which Mr. Roosevelt announced had been dispatched to the bases acquired from Britain in Trinidad and British Guiana.

For the present, this much was clear—the United States was taking over an outpost deep in the intensified counter-blockade zone Germany has established around the British Isles. This zone, however, has never been recognized by this country.

One source close to the war department was of the opinion that the Iceland outpost would complicate any Nazi attempt to invade Britain, unless Germany wished to involve the United States. He said an invasion was unlikely until the Nazis had completed the encirclement of Britain by occupying both Iceland and Ireland—and occupation of Iceland now involves the dislodgement of the U. S. garrison forces there.

In his message, the president stressed "considerations of safety from overseas attack."

Without disclosing any information about possible German intentions, Mr. Roosevelt declared that "the occupation of Iceland by Germany would constitute a serious threat in three dimensions. . . . Against Greenland and the northern portion of the North American continent. . . . Against all shipping in the North Atlantic. . . . Against the steady flow of munitions to Britain."

"It is therefore imperative," he said, "that the approaches between the Americas and those strategic outposts, the safety of which this country regards as essential to its national security and which it must therefore defend, shall remain open and free from all hostile activity or threat thereof. . . .

"This government will insure the adequate defense of Iceland with full recognition of the independence of Iceland as a sovereign state."

Willkie Calls Move In Iceland Needed

NEW YORK —(INS)— Terming the American occupation of Iceland a "necessary move," Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, today said that he hoped President Roosevelt's action would be followed by other moves "to further insure the delivery of our products to Britain."

Willkie said he advocated the Iceland action in a Chicago speech last June "as a necessary precaution for the protection of the United States." Possession of Iceland, he declared will insure "our ability to protect shipments from the United States to the British Isles."

It's Intervention, Italians Declare

ROME—(U.P.)—Responsible Italian quarters today termed United States occupation of Iceland an "actual intervention" in European waters and said it probably would result in Axis-American incidents because it would not cause the Axis to relax its blockade of the British Isles.

The purpose of the occupation, they asserted, was to create a vast zone in which vessels carrying supplies for Britain could navigate safely and, in effect, amounted to actual convoying since it would bring the United States navy into the German blockade area.

Boy Burned In Blast From Gas Valve

Sudden explosion of gas around a sidewalk valve on North Franklin avenue Sunday afternoon hurled Clarence Thompson, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson, 86 East Dickson avenue, 15 feet against a wall. Above left, Clarence is shown with his head bandaged because of severe lacerations and bruises. Right, Ben Boals, jr., of 220 Summit street, who heard the blast, points to the valve located in front of 68 North Franklin avenue. Police said today that they believed that valve was connected to an abandoned gasoline supply tank below the walk's surface. Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said that steps would be taken to insure the safety of pedestrians. The explosion is believed to have occurred when the boy lit a match near the valve.

ALL QUIET ON ECUADOR FRONT

But Nations Ready Protests as Other Countries Offer Mediation.

Ecuador was attempting to make Peru seem "an anti-Democratic trouble-maker," and was circulating false stories that Peru was preparing to attack Ecuador with Axis help.

(Other South American nations —and perhaps the United States —apparently were ready to step in in a new attempt to mediate the frontier dispute. The Argentine foreign office said last night Argentina, the United States and Brazil would renew a recent offer to serve as mediators. There were reports that Chile also was about to offer its service in mediation.)

An Ecuadorean communique last night indicated that the fighting had dwindled since clashes Saturday and Sunday, but reported Peruvian planes attacked the frontier town of Huaquillas yesterday morning.

U. S. Joins Effort To Settle Border Row

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The United States, Argentina and Brazil today joined in an attempt to settle peacefully Peru and Ecuador's territorial dispute and at the same time sought to determine if Germany helped precipitate warfare between the two countries.

After expressing the state department's concern over the outbreak of hostilities in the western hemisphere, acting Secretary of state Sumner Welles conferred with the ambassadors of the two principal South American powers — Argentina and Brazil.

It was agreed that the incident came at a most unfortunate time in view of the critical international situation and while most of the Latin American republics were seeking to present a united front against the Axis powers.

Welles and the two envoys tentatively agreed to renew the offer of "friendly services" tendered Peru and Ecuador by the United States, Argentina and Brazil several weeks ago. At that time, these three nations offered their help in weighing the dispute over the ownership and a sizeable piece of border territory.

Ecuador accepted the offer but Peru imposed numerous conditions. The result was that negotiations were abandoned.

It appears likely, according to diplomatic observers, that the United States, Argentina and Brazil will make every effort to bring about immediate negotiations between the disputants.

SHERIFF, JUDGE JOIN DRIVE ON HORN TOOTING

Support Councilman Kyle's Move For Ordinance To Put Curb on Noise.

offer first-hand evidence of the nuisance thus created.

"Much of the noise is not only a nuisance, but a downright danger," the sheriff said, "young men circling the park in their cars put half their attention on blowing horns and half conversing with their friends. They give practically no attention to their driving."

Both the sheriff and Judge Cramer were emphatic in their condemnation of drivers who blast away at their horns during periods of traffic congestion downtown.

"Horn tooting won't make the light change any faster," they agreed, "and it won't make traffic move a bit faster. All it does is shred the nerves of pedestrians, workers and other motorists."

Chief Bates based his objection to legal curbs on horn-blowing on the safety element.

He also pointed out that there is an old ordinance, still in effect, that requires a motorist to blow for each intersection, when approaching a pedestrian and before backing up his car.

However, he had no comment on the continual uproar that would result if every driver blew his horn for every corner or whenever he approached a pedestrian.

Moreover the chief did not look with favor on Beverstock's 500-mile silent driving proposal.

"The idea is against the law as it now stands," Bates said.

"The idea is against the law as it now stands," Bates said.

However, the chief claims, he has a solution to the whole thing —his proposed five-man traffic squad, which has been authorized by council but not in operation as yet.

These men would be motorcycle mounted, and their duty would be to keep traffic moving and, the chief says, they could be instructed to put an end to unnecessary tooting.

When it was pointed out that there are six intersections around Central park, and asked whether drivers who blew for each of them, as the present law stipulates, wouldn't "make monkeys" out of the squad, the chief replied snappily:

"Nobody can make monkeys out of my men."

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch indicated that he was interested in Kyle's proposal, but since he would have to hear cases of offenders, if the ordinance became law, declined to comment.

Meanwhile, persons who have downtown offices said today that there had been a noticeable decline in the amount of horn-blowing in the business section since Beverstock's suggestion and Kyle's promise to seek a law against un-necessary "beeping."

SHELBY COUNCIL APPROVES CITY BUDGET FOR '42

Lists $72,853 For General Fund, $17,200 For Bond Retirement.

SHELBY—The tentative budget setting up $72,853 in the general fund to operate the municipal government during 1942, and $17,200 for bond retirement was approved by city council as presented by Finance Director Chester P. Monn with one minor change.

The budget as read by Director Monn to the council at its semi-monthly session Monday night at city hall, included $15,550 for the police department.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JULY 8, 1941.

More recent cartoons give an idea that Joe Stalin may not be such a bad person, after all.

"Anonymous" has just given Harvard university five million dollars—which is much more creditable than when he writes a letter.

It's fine to have new crops of boys and girls coming along all the time, who don't know that things "can't be done that way" and so just go ahead and do them.

America To Guard Iceland

WHILE there will be varied interpretations of the incident of sending a U. S. naval force to Iceland, to bolster the strength of that now independent government, this move seems to be in entire accord with America's policy to safeguard the Western Hemisphere against possible attack by a foreign power.

President Roosevelt's statement that the American navy is to supplement, and later replace, British forces now in Iceland, clearly indicates intention of the United States government to give every possible aid to Britain, to the end that the Axis powers may be defeated by superior strength of the nations united to end the totalitarian threat of world domination.

Germany's occupation of Denmark, which formerly ruled Iceland, left no doubt of Nazi intention to make later use of this semi-arctic island as a strategic air or naval base, which Iceland alone would be helpless to prevent.

Occupation by American naval forces, to relieve British units needed elsewhere, is in full accord with views of the Iceland government, with the understanding that there will be immediate withdrawal at the end of the war.

Coupled with information that "substantial forces of the United States have now been sent to the bases acquired last year from Great Britain in Trinidad and British Guiana, in the south," the news of the occupation of Iceland is further evidence of the near approach being made to actual participation in the war.

And all of this signals the need for increasing armament-production speed and making ready in man power, munitions and food supplies for the next move—whatever it may be.

Notice Horn-Honking Types

THE IDEA that needless horn-honking, by some motorists addicted to that practice, is associated with mental immaturity, is borne out by study of the several types of persons most given to this viciously disturbing habit.

Really competent drivers seldom have occasion to use the horn on their car, except to signal intention to pass another car on the highway, and the suggestion of Frank Beverstock, automobile club secretary, that motorists try the experiment of driving 500 miles without use of the horn is not as impossible as it may appear to habitual horn-honkers.

Under no circumstances, in city driving, should a horn be sounded to warn pedestrians to get out of the way, as city speed limits are intended to keep motor vehicles in such complete control that the driver can stop, if necessary, to allow pedestrians to clear the cross walks.

Whether there is need for another ordinance to prevent needless horn blowing, as is now being considered, is problematical, as an ordinance now on the books reads: "It shall be unlawful for any person to disturb the peace and good order of this city by unusual and unnecessary noise . . . ," with a fine of from $1 to $50 prescribed for offenders.

If, however, a more specific restriction is deemed advisable by city council, it might be accomplished by amending a section of present ordinances which reads: "It shall be unlawful for any persons to sound or cause to be sounded the whistle of any locomotive engine within the corporate limits of the city of Mansfield, except at street or railroad crossings and when it may be actually necessary to prevent accident."

Whatever opinions may be held as to the minimum age at which children should be permitted to drive automobiles, there will probably be quite general agreement that habitual horn-blowers—regardless of age—are too "young" to be accorded this privilege.

Fire Prevention Part of Defense

ALMOST every night incendiary bombs are dropped on England. Any one of these bombs might ignite a whole city. Yet the English have kept the fire destruction caused by such bombs down to the minimum. They have done that largely because all citizens feel themselves responsible for fire control. Great Britain, in fighting for the life of the empire, has found time to train its people in fire prevention and fire control.

Will it take a war, with all its bloodshed and horror, to make Americans conscious of our responsibility for our own fire problems? According to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, now celebrating its 75th anniversary, America is a backward nation, as regards fire prevention and control.

England, in the midst of war, has roused its citizens to the danger and the needless expense of fire. Can Americans be roused in time of peace? This is a challenge that all of us must accept—and it is a challenge which is doubly important now, when fire is an ever-present danger to the swift development of the defense program. Every fire prevented means that a step has been taken to make this country more powerful and secure.

Time for Rank-and-File to Act

ACCORDING to Attorney General Jackson, certain labor leaders responsible for recent strikes in defense industries have definite communist sympathies. They are following long-established soviet "wrecking" tactics.

It now remains to be seen whether the rank and file of labor will continue to accept this kind of alien-inspired leadership. If it does, the government will have no choice but to use stern measures—and the public will back up the government. Labor can clean house now, adjust its grievances through mediation, and buckle down to the vital defense job. To continue to strike against the nation's safety will jeopardize the progress which organized labor has made through several generations.

Hitchhiking Generation

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DOES your 'teen-age youngster leave you gasping? Are you stunned by his fantastic demands . . . his arrogance and egotism . . . his mysterious hostility . . . his irresponsibility and self pity? You wonder what in heck has come over Young America and what you can do about it? Then here's news.

"Hoppy" has a name for it. He calls them the "hitchhiking generation." And he should know. For "Hoppy" is Ernest Martin Hopkins, president of Dartmouth for the last 25 years.

The first of those years were happy ones, "Hoppy" being not only hep to kids but beloved by them. His campus saw the usual pranks . . . the normal ferment of young growth. But with the 30's came a change which has saddened and bewildered him as much as it has millions of other American teachers and parents.

Instead of the screwball young squirts who have pestered Prexy's from time immemorial, there began to appear a breed of cynical sophisticates . . . pouting parasites . . . without enthusiasm or initiative. Adolescent exhibitionists whose patter and pattern were as gaudy and shallow as the dye in a phoney sarong.

Hadn't Campus Kids been smart-alecs before? They certainly had. But they'd been lovable, enthusiastic, ambitious smart-alecs. And they'd work their fiery young heads off if given a chance. But this new breed was neither lovable, enthusiastic nor ambitious. It wanted success, but wanted the success handed to it on a silver platter. In the meantime it devoted itself to juke joints and trick clothes . . . and took enormous pleasure in sitting around and being sorry for itself . . . calling itself the Forgotten Generation . . . and panning the Old Folks and the government.

So "Hoppy," who had put Dartmouth and himself on the map by training a "he-man spirit," looked them over and, with infinite contempt and sadness, called them "the hitchhiking generation." . . . Which, you'll admit, is a plenty apt title, if you've boiled over at hitch-hiking antics, as most of us have done.

Husky young humans thumbing a ride instead of hustling for the price of one . . . expecting a lift to the next town, or through life, instead of hoofing it proudly on their own. And throwing tantrums if they don't get it.

That's how President Hopkins sees the trend of modern youth. And, to a large and lamentable degree, it's true.

BUT WHY CONFINE IT TO YOUTH?

HAVEN'T WE ALL BECOME "HITCHHIKERS" TO A GREATER OR LESS DEGREE?

DON'T WE, THE OLDSTERS, WANT A FREE RIDE THROUGH DISCOMFORT AND RESPONSIBILITY AS MUCH AS THE YOUNGSTERS?

AREN'T WE ALL WAITING FOR SOME LUCKY BREAK TO ELIMINATE THE DRUDGERY AND DANGER OF LIFE?

AREN'T WE ALL SOLD 100 PER CENT ON THE "GET RICH QUICK" SCHOOL OF PHILOSOPHY?

DON'T WE ALL SECRETLY SUBSCRIBE TO THE CREED THAT "ONLY SAPS WORK?"

The answer is, we are, we do.

And personally I suspect that the greatest thing that has happened to us is this present defense emergency. Which, whatever else it does, is guaranteed to lift us out of the loafer and lounge lizard class. And hustle. OR ELSE!

Timely Editorial

Too, Too Trusting.

Among 32 accused spies rounded up by the FBI is a Herman Lang, a German-born draftsman, revealed to have been for several years an inspector of the Norden bombsight, which is, by reputation at least, the most closely guarded of this country's military secrets.

We have no way of knowing what the evidence may be, but the FBI is not in the habit of taking anything less than a constructive case to court. What baffles the onlooker, in so many cases where espionage is established, is the apparent ease with which the culprit maneuvers himself in the way of the inforamtion he is after. Maybe it attests our faith in strangers, our traditional readiness to accept people for what they appear or profess to be; but at times this works out to a guillibility which costs us dearly.—Detroit News.

This Is Ohio

In his book, "Mad Anthony Wayne," Thomas Boyd has brought out new facts concerning Wayne's victory over the Indians at Fallen Timbers on the Maumee in 1794.

The author asserts that General Wayne was in even greater uneasiness during the time that passed between the agreement upon an armistice and the actual signing of the theaty than he was before the battle. So many frontiersmen were crossing the Ohio from Kentucky that Wayne feared the Indian war would be renewed before the treaty gathering.

Wayne blamed the unsettled situation on Nathaniel Massie and the Rev. Robert Finley, who were making surveys to establish a settlement. Wayne ventured the thought that "Parson Finley was not displaying the spirit of the Master" in thus inciting the tribesmen against peace.

How It Started

"Every Inch a King."

Royalty has gone out of fashion, but not the traditional regal qualities.

It is these that are highlighted in the expression "Every inch a king"—brain-child of the world's greatest maker of apt phrase and meaty metaphor in common use.

It is an interesting although pathetic episode in King Lear (Act IV, Scene 6), that we find its first recorded appearance—revealing the power, depth, profundity and genius of Shakespeare.

When the poor old king, driven by the ungrateful and false daughters between whom he had divided his kingdom, wanders, bereft of his senses, on the fields of Dover, he soliloquizes aloud.

Glouscester, hearing him, says: "The trick of that voice I do well remember; is 't not the king?"

To which Lear, fantastically covered with wild flowers, a mad old man, answers proudly:

"Ay, every inch a king."

Army 'Airline' Across Atlantic To Speed-Up Official Business

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Thanks to its potent lobby, Pan-American Airways recently succeeded in blocking the establishment of a competing airline across the Atlantic. The White House, state department, army and navy wanted the second service, but Pan-Am had more influence with a majority of the U. S. senate.

No announcement has been made about it, but today there is another competing airline across the Atlantic. It is operated by the U. S. army air corps, and was established because of Pan-Am's inability to meet the war-booming demand for transatlantic service.

Using four-motor heavy bombers, the planes carry only officials and official pouches to and from England. Ambassador Winant returned to London by this means.

The American "port" of this new airline is the army's great air base at Bolling Field, Va. The service is under the direction of Colonel Robert Olds, ace air corps commander, who was recently put in charge of ferrying lend-lease bombers from the west coast airplane plants to Britain. The new airline operates as part of that service.

At present two bombers are in use, and more are expected to be added. The planes are manned by air corps crews and operate on closely-guarded schedules and over a secret route.

"His Majesty's Ship."

SERIOUS-MINDED Lord Halifax, British ambassador, has his lighter moments. The other day he entertained friends at the state department with this story:

A sailor from a visiting British warship was wandering around Boston. A woman stopped him and asked the meaning of the letters "H. M. S." on his hat.

He replied, "H'I Mustn't Say."

Note—H. M. S. stands for His Majesty's Ship.

Defense Rail Boss.

OPM CHIEFS aren't admitting it, but they want the president to replace Ralph Budd, Burlington railroad executive, as defense rail director.

Number 1 choice as his successor is Joseph B. Eastman, veteran chairman of the interstate commerce commission and one of the greatest transportation experts in the country.

Budd has been under fire in defense circles because of alleged failure to get the railroads to undertake a big freight car and locomotive program last year, when steel was plentiful. However, rail men vigorously contend that Budd has done a good job of coordinating, deny there will be a car shortage this year.

Indirectly they admit there may be one next year, by saying that what happens depends on whether they can get deliveries of the thousands of new cars they have ordered. This year's freight requirements are estimated at 45,000,000 cars, next year at 48,000,000, and 1943, 50,000,000 cars.

Eastman and the president are old friends. In the early years of the New Deal, when railroad consolidation was much in the air, Roosevelt gave Eastman the job of working out a plan. He submitted a comprehensive program, but nothing came of it because of powerful rail and Wall Street opposition.

Civil Service Lobby.

THOUGH pushed aside by war headlines, one of the most significant battles affecting good government is now raging backstage over whether the top employes of the farm security administration shall receive a pay bonus of about $10,000,000 by being blanketed into civil service.

Gnashing its teeth over this battle and pulling every political wire in its giant mesh is the civil service lobby, which has taken the place of the once strong "dry" lobby as the most powerful in Washington.

Like the "drys," the civil service lobby operates supposedly for the best interests of good government. Basically, however, its motives are entirely selfish. It is out to protect government workers, no matter how inefficient they may be. And despite the highly successful, synthetic build-up which civil service has received throughout the country, anyone around Washington who is honest will tell you that civil service is one great reason for government inefficiency and for the lagging defense program.

The case of the farm security employes is a rare instance where both Democrats and Republicans united to kill some political boodle. Even Representative Taber of New York, violent critic of the New Deal, voted for the Democratic amendment which will prevent farm security employes from being blanketed into civil service automatically, regardless of their merits. His reason was that this would have cost the government $10,000,000 extra, giving increased salaries to top executives, but forcing the discharge of lesser employes because there isn't $10,000,000 extra in the budget.

Democrats who voted with Republican Taber did so because they knew that many farm security executives, especially in the northwest, instead of helping the farmer, were bankers and small town moguls whose interests in the past have been diametrically opposed to the farmer's.

Lost Daylight Saving?

A FEW days ago the federal power commission, backed by OPM Directors Knudsen and Hillman, called on the people in the southeastern states to cut down their use of electricity so as to provide more power for urgent defense needs.

Ardently patriotic, the people of this section unquestionably will respond. But the incident illustrates the lack of coordination in the vast defense program.

For months, defense chiefs have realized the danger of a serious power shortage. And for months there has been knocking around in the labyrinth of defense offices a recommendation for a nationwide two-hour daylight saving system. Experts estimate that several hundred thousand kilowatts could be obtained by this simple measure. Britain and Germany have had it in operation continuously since the start of the war.

But in the good old "business-as-usual" U. S. A. the move is still only a "recommendation" in a memorandum gathering dust somewhere in a defense pigeonhole. Sooner or later a master mind will suddenly come to life and do something about it. Meanwhile, with the power shortage increasing, thousands of kilowatts are being consumed needlessly.

United Service Organizations have had some big gifts, but none more touching than the savings brought in by one Harry Katz, who emptied on the desk 512 pennies, 44 nickles, eight dimes, and one quarter. . . . Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — I suppose I've crossed and recrossed the Hudson River at least 5,000 times I've traveled up and down it in boats, cars and trains, I've flown over it in planes, stared at it from skyscraper windows, read about it, thought about it, and, on one occasion, I fell into it.

So I think I know a little something about this river that means so much to New York and the nation. But I see now I didn't know half as much about it or really appreciate what a grab-bag of witch hunts, headless horsemen, shad nets, battlefields, legends, river packets, gamblers, pirates, treason, romance and history the Hudson river always has been and still is until I spent an evening recentely poring over hundreds of photographs taken by a Toledo, Ohio, huckeye named Croswell Bowen.

* * *

BOWEN has spent years prowling the river's banks and prying into its secrets with a camera. As Carl Carmer says, "Bowen doesn't just photograph landscapes; he lets the river tell its own story to the camera."

One of his pictures shows an old Revolutionary War cannon next to a great slab of rock . . . In the rock is a bronze plaque which says: "In the dead of night, on the 21st of September, 1780, Benedict Arnold, the Traitor, and John Andre, the Spy, met at the water's edge, where the gun points, to plot the fall of America's freedom." . . . This now is known as Treason Hill. The gun points to the exact spot where Major Andre landed from the sloop Vulture to negotiate with Arnold.

I like things like that. They fascinate me. So do the pondshiners, or hill people, who live along certain parts of the Hudson in what scientists call "sociological islands." . . . The customs and the changing times never reach them . . . They are the same now as they always have been.

* * *

ONE of Bowen's pictures is of a tomb marked "M. V." (Matthew Vassar), resting place of the old beer baron who, though unlettered himself, founded a famous college for women . . . There are brooding castles, dry docks, fishermen at their nets, farmers, ship builders, great bridges that are poetic realizations of engineering dreams . . . There are old taverns and great painted sunsets that slip into the water like Sutter 's gold, and a skyline and great liners . . . There is a flag and the shadow of a statue carrying proudly a high burning torch that falls across the river front and across New York and indeed across the whole of this nation.

These are a few of the hundreds of Bowen's pictures that I was thrilled by and that he has put into a book called "Great River of the Mountains: The Hudson." (Hastings House, N. Y.)

Now, it seems that when I cross the river I see, not just water, but something perhaps of Washington Irving and Lafayette and a gallows on a windy hill . . . I see blunt-nosed tugs and tulip beds and strange Dutch pantaloons and a bottle of gin . . . For these are a part of the river's history, and what the river is is always the breath and pulse beat of New York.

Hoeing Corn

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

EVERY day for more than a week we have hoed corn. Heavy rains some time ago made the field too wet in spots for cultivation. Weeds and fall grass got so well started within the drill rows that it was too late to cover it with dirt. Bindweed was there and some of the tallest stalks looked like green pillars, so completely were they covered by the clinging pest.

I bought a file and worked on all the hoes. Then we started to work, my wife, oldest son and I. It looked like a hopeless task, but we hit the worst places first, and took one row at a time. From just after sunup until the sun became too hot, we hoed.

The spring was not far off and at intervals the second lad brought water. The boy was small and the path he took had blooming timothy on either side. Often when he reached us the open surface of the water in the gallon pail had numerous fallen grains floating on it. I poured them off before we drank copiously, in defiance of the heat.

When, sometime after ten, we came in, perspiring and weary, I found no sensation pleasanter than to sit upon the mossy stone steps above the spring and leisurely quaff the water. The pond, too, warmed by the sun to a more comfortable temperature than its usual chill, offered tempting relaxation. Here by the grassy edge we removed our dust-filled shoes and shook them out, then laved our punished and aching feet in the cool water. What satisfaction.

When the heat of the day was past we returned to the field again. The white midrib of each leaf of gleaming corn shows plainly and we feel against our arms and hands the finely serrated edges of the glossy green blades. A crane flies over regularly at dusk, and the evening mail plane reverberates as it speeds southward.

To the rhythm of the hoe we hear the night sounds come . . . the quivering tree toads in the nearby foliage, the crickets beneath the clods. Eerie lightning flares from rising clouds in the west. The moon is up.

Then slowly we go in—to enjoy the rest and sleep that follows toil like this.

SYNOPSIS

Doris Newton, blond, blue-eyed and 19, and Bonnie Dutton, her roommate at Mrs. Ames' boarding house, sell stockings in the basement of Klane's Detroit department store. They have a hard time making ends meet and Bonnie finally decides to marry Donald Drane, although she does not love him. He is a mechanic making good wages and she is tired of the sameness of a saleslgirl's life. Roy Johnston is Doris's only boy friend and he begrudges her the evenings she stays at home to read and improve herself. The day Bonnie announces that in just one month she and Don are to marry, Roy goes to the store at lunch time and as they eat announces that he had had a raise. He says they can be married now and can't understand her refusal and her explanation that she must love the man she marries. He warns her he may change his mind and marry someone else. That night she finds a letter at Mrs. Ames' containing a check for $5,000, first prize in a canned milk slogan contest. She is overjoyed and one of her first thoughts is that she can save Bonnie from a loveless marriage. But Bonnie says she wants security when Doris unfolds her plans. She is going to spend the $5,000 on a trip to South America. To Doris this means freedom, adventure, romance. At a travel agency she books passage on a luxury liner sailing from New York in two weeks and spends the intervening time laying in a complete wardrobe. She does not regret the $2,000 it cost her and is thrilled by even the railroad journey to New York.

CHAPTER II

The gentle motion of the boat was new and thrilling to Doris Newton. She walked slowly from the crowded deck, through the dimly-lighted corridors to her stateroom. She knew that she was to share her cabin with another woman, but she preferred it that way. And by doing so she could afford to have much better accommodations.

She opened the door. A large, pleasant-faced woman of middle age was unpacking.

"I'm Eva Pringle," she said, and her voice was so friendly that Doris liked her instantly.

The room was not large but in addition to beds and dressing table there were two lounging chairs and a comfortable-looking couch. The bath was tiled in black and white. Doris investigated everything with an eagerness that must have been evident to her companion.

"Is this your first trip?" she asked.

Doris turned away from the porthole through which she had been watching the panorama of disappearing lights.

"Yes," she admitted. "I've never been outside Detroit before."

Miss Pringle smiled. "This is my fourth trip."

"How wonderful!" Doris said, impressed.

"You see, I teach school, which means that I have to save every cent I can between trips."

Her frankness appealed to Doris. The annoying suspicion that she might feel out of place with her fellow travelers was dissipated. At least so far as her cabin-mate was concerned.

"It's thrilling," Miss Pringle continued, "especially the first time."

Doris lifted an armload of dresses from a suitcase and began hanging them in the wardrobe. "I've risked everything to take this trip," she confided. "I hope it's going to be worth it."

"And what is everything?"

"I won five thousand dollars in a contest. So I gave up my job and I'm not going back to work until I have to. My friends think I'm crazy but I had to take a chance."

"Why?" Miss Pringle inquired gently.

Doris snapped shut the empty suitcase and shoved it under her bed. "Because I want to see the kind of life I've read about. For the last three years I've stood behind a counter in Klane's basement selling hosiery. Every day I hoped that something would happen to get me out of the rut. And then it did . . ."

"And so now you've staked it all on this one trip?"

"Yes! And something wonderful is bound to happen. I know it will. I couldn't go all the way to South America and back and not have something thrilling to remember."

"It's possible," Miss Pringle said, remembering dreary voyages that she herself had taken. "But you mustn't expect too much. After all, a ship is just like a little town."

"In what way?" Doris asked, surprised.

"Full of gossip—intrigue."

But Doris, intoxicated with the spirit of her adventure, was not alarmed. "At least I won't be bored," she smiled.

Miss Pringle smiled too and said no more. It was futile to warn a girl who was nineteen and beautiful; a girl who was looking through the rose-colored glasses of her own dreams.

The next day, however, Doris felt slightly less confident. The passengers who were on deck certainly appeared bored and indifferent. Many did not leave their cabins.

"Veteran travelers," explained Eva Pringle, "are never very friendly the first few days. It takes a little time to size up the other passengers."

"But there's so little time," Doris protested. "It's only twelve days to Rio."

"It will seem like twelve months before its over. Everything takes on such an exaggerated importance at sea."

Doris shook her head. "I'm afraid I don't understand."

"That's why one must not take a shipboard romance too seriously."

* * *

Was Miss Pringle trying to disillusion her? Doris smiled. Shipboard romance indeed! She had not seen a single outstanding man. Not one that roused her interest. Perhaps the voyage was going to be dull and unexciting after all.

That first day seemed like a year. With the agreeable Miss Pringle she walked around the deck at least a dozen times.

"I've never seen time pass so slowly," she complained.

"You have too much energy," her companion told her. "Personally I'm glad of a chance to relax."

"Maybe you're right," Doris said thoughtfully, recalling the hubbub of Klane's basement.

How far away it all seemed now. Donnie, Roy and the shabby boarding house. What a contrast to these broad sun-drenched decks, the tiled swimming pool, the veranda cafe, the attractive lounge and the well trained stewards who seemed to pursue the passengers with trays of food.

"I always take on weight," Miss Pringle sighed, accepting another sandwich. "There's nothing much to do but eat."

"I'm beginning to believe you," Doris said. She sank into a deck chair and looked out across the vast waters of the Atlantic, so clear and blue that water and sky seemed welded together.

"Don't be discouraged," Miss Pringle comforted. "The first day is always the hardest. It's too soon to tell yet. There are usually two kinds of voyages. Either nothing at all happens, or too much."

"Gossip and broken hearts?" laughed Doris.

"That's correct," Miss Pringle agreed.

Doris sat at the doctor's table with Miss Pringle and four other passengers. Meals, she soon discovered, were prolonged as long as possible, as one of the easiest methods of passing time. After lunch most of the passengers retired for a "siesta," and Doris Newton was no exception.

* * *

The second day out she lay drowsily on her bed surprised at the feeling of lassitude that was creeping over her. The fresh sea air and sunshine had started their cure. She was almost asleep when an alarm screamed through the silence.

Doris leaped to her feet terrified. "What is it?"

"Only the fire drill," Miss Pringle assured her. "Get into your life preserver and go on deck as quickly as possible."

Bewildered but obedient, Doris buttoned a linen coat over her pajamas, snatched up her life preserver and hurried after Miss Pringle.

Yawning groups of passengers were assembled at the various stations. Doris watched, fascinated as the sailors swung out the boats, partially lowering them, in preparation for an emergency. Then it was over. The whistle blew and the passengers returned to their cabins.

Doris had lingered, tugging at her life preserver, eager to discard the awkward garment.

"Need some help?"

She looked up to see a man standing beside her. In that instant she saw that he was young, well built, with sleek black hair and deep blue eyes, which were contemplating her with amusement.

"Apparently you don't know how to work these things," he told her.

"It's my first experience," Doris admitted.

He untied the obstinate knot.

"Why do they always pull these drills at the most inconvenient time?" he complained.

She noticed then that he was wearing slacks, an ancient sweater, and bedroom slippers.

"I resent having my siesta interrupted. After living two years in Brazil, it has become a habit."

"Brazil! Is it as beautiful as the travel folders picture it?"

"It is," he laughed. "More beautiful and infinitely more dirty."

* * *

Doris became suddenly conscious of her own appearance. Her nose was unpowdered, her hair touseled; the pink linen coat was hastily buttened.

"I must go," she said quickly.

As he ran his hand over his sleek black hair she saw that he had a deep scar above his right eye. But for some strange reason the gesture endeared her to him.

"How about meeting me for a cocktail before dinner" he suggested.

"I'd love to."

"Six o'clock—in the bar then."

Their eyes met and in that brief moment Doris felt her heart-beat quicken . . . Then she turned swiftly and left him.

"I was beginning to think you were lost," Miss Pringle said when Doris returned to their cabin a few minutes later.

"I was talking to someone," Doris said. Her voice was low and tense with excitement.

Miss Pringle looked up from the stocking she was mending.

"Oh really? Who?"

"I don't know his name," Doris admitted, "but I'm going to meet him for cocktails . . ."

She lay quietly on her bed, turning her glowing face away from Miss Pringle's kindly scrutiny. She was remembering his voice, his face. A face that was at once dear and familiar even though she had never seen it before.

Doris knew that the adventure she had been waiting for all her life had begun. She was on her way to South America! Eleven more days before they reached Rio de Janeiro. Eleven days on this ship with a tall young man whose stormy blue eyes had seemed to pierce into her heart. She did not know his name. But no matter who he was, no matter where he came from, he was the man of her dreams. And in less than three short hours she would be seeing him again.

Sleep was impossible but in thrilling anticipation of that moment, Doris closed her eyes.

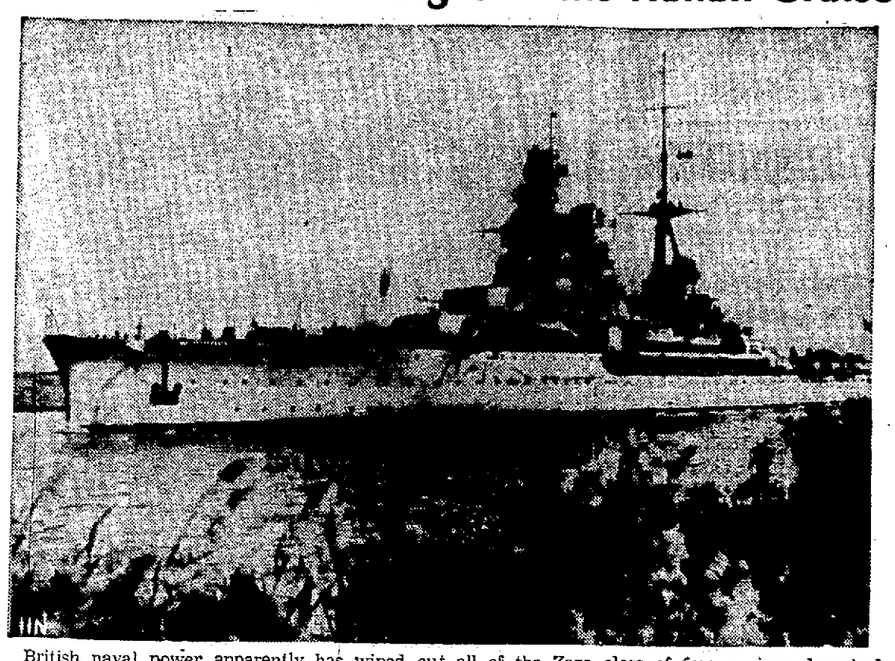
British Claim Sinking Of This Italian Cruiser



British naval power apparently has wiped out all of the Zara class of four cruisers launched by the Italians in 1930 and 1931 if a report that the Gorizia, last of the four, was sunk by a British submarine in the Mediterranean, is true. The cruisers, carrying normal complements of 705 men, were armed with eight 8-inch guns, a dozen 3.9-inch guns and 18 anti-aircraft pieces. The Gorizia is pictured above.

Girl Chases Boy.

Girl chases boy in the rollicking comedy, "In the Navy," co-starring Bud Abbott, Lou Costello and Dick Powell, at the Ohio. Claire Dodd plays the newspaperwoman after a story and Powell is the crooner whose secret enlistment in the U. S. navy supplies it. Abbott and Costello have a bag of new tricks that enlivens the picture at every turn and the Andrews Sisters have a boogie woogie number for every occasion. Dick Foran leaves his singing cowboy roles to play a hard-boiled chief petty officer and the Condos brothers appear in dances.

Gay Comedy.

Merle Oberon and Melvyn Douglas are co-starred as a happy couple who discover through a psychoanalyst that they have no right to be happy in Ernst Lubitsch's comedy, "That Uncertain Feeling," opening Wednesday at the Madison. Supporting the stars are Burgess Meredith, as a wild-haired pianist, Alan Mowbray as a psychoanalyst, and Eve Arden, as an unconventional private secretary. The plot unwinds on New York's Park avenue and gives the leading lady opportunity to wear jewels and a stunning wardrobe. Lee Patrick and Regis Toomey are featured in "The Nurse's Secret," the companion feature.

S. troops, struggles at a canyon's edge between renegades and the law, stampedes and other thrilling features are among the elements that go to make up this fast western. Ruth Donnelly is in the cast. "Here Comes Happiness," the second feature, tells the story of a wealthy girl who found happiness only after she left pretentious surroundings. Mildred Coles and Edward Norris are in the cast.

WOMEN FINED

Muny Judge Hears Charges Against Mansfield Pair.

Two Mansfield women were fined yesterday in Municipal court on charges of soliciting funds for immoral purposes.

Corrine Leonard was fined $100 and costs after she had pleaded guilty to the charge.

When reminded by the judge that he had suspended her fine in April on the condition that she leave town, she answered, "Yes, Judge, but you didn't say anything about coming back."

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch then revoked suspension of the earlier fine of $80 and a 10-day jail sentence imposed on a petit larceny charge.

Second fined was Ruth Howard who pleaded not guilty but was convicted and fined $50 and costs.

Milk Mixture for Stomach Ulcers

It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in the purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonfuls in a ½-glass of milk. Costs but little and sold under an absolute guarantee—it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by

Bill Peppard Marries Ft. Wayne Girl July 5

Announcements are being received here of the marriage of Miss Lois Ida Magley of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and William David Peppard, also of Ft. Wayne, a former Mansfield resident and son of Dr. and Mrs David White Peppard, 93 West Fourth street. The nuptials were solemnized July 5 at 10:30 o'clock before the altar of the Plymouth Congregational church. Dr. Charles MacMillan Houser officiated in the presence of friends and relatives.

Before a setting of white gladioli and palms, softened by the glow of cathedral tapers, the bride was given in marriage by her father, Calvin C. Magley. She was formally attired in a street-length costume of white linen, trimmed only with embroidered scallops about the collarless neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The skirt fell straight in soft plaits. Her smart turban with its perky bow was fashioned of white braid and she wore white gloves and footwear and carried a white purse. She wore pure white Nutley orchids.

Her only sister, Miss Rachael Magley, attended her and wore fuchsia-throated yellow L'Orine orchids with her light blue cotton pique dress which fastened across the bodice with a single large pearl button. Her turban matched her dress and her costume accessories were white. Mr. Kenneth Kimmel was Mr. Peppard's best man, and the latter's two brothers-in-law, Mr. O. J. Wilkinson and Mr. James Keyes of Columbus, O., and the brides' brother, John Magley, ushered.

Mrs. Magley wore a cluster of deep Carmen orchids on her starlight blue crepe redingote ensemble and Mrs. Peppard, mother of the bridegroom, wore Serbia orchids of a lighter fuchsia tone on her printed sheer outfit.

Nuptial music was played by Raymond Weaver, organst, and Miss Beartha Reichard, vocalist, sang several numbers.

Immediately, following the ceremony the young newly weds greeted their friends informally at the church entrance and from there went to the Aulton House where a wedding breakfast was served the immediate families and guests from out of town. Bouquets of delicate-hued larkspur and marguerites flanked the high wedding cake, which was wreated in daisy-studded smilax.

Shortly after noon young Mr. and Mrs. Peppard left on a trip to Virginia and to eastern cities and after July 14 they will be at home at 2336½ South Hanna street. He is a Leland-Stanford university man and a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and now is associated with the engineering department of the General Electric. His bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Magley of Ft. Wayne, is a member of Delta Rho Chapter, Sigma Phi Gamma Sorority.

Wives Need Not Be Selfish With Mates

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Because necessity is the mother of invention, the male of the species has become very adroit in concealing things from his better half."

Coming across this challenging sentence in "Lawyers Title News," published in Richmond, Virginia, I adjust my spectacles breathlessly. It seems that many men are reduced to all manner of subterfuge when it comes to saving "cigaret" money" from their pay envelopes.

A letter received by a loan institution from an attorney reads:

"Gentlemen:

"Your letter of the 4th is the occasion of this reply. The apparent excess deduction for title examination and insurance from the borrower was not actual and I certainly did not receive any more than I was supposed to have.

"Confidentially, the borrower's wife 'holds the purse strings' and he asked me to employ this method in order to get him a little spending money.

"Singularly, another borrower has made a similar request when his loan is closed."

This piteous plea for a few smokes or perhaps an occasional cup of coffee, or maybe something stronger, brings to mind numerous letters received by this column, one of which follows:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Call this a case of suppressed desires if you like, but I've always been crazy about tools, though my father put me in a bank, from which I've lacked the initiative to cut loose. The lady-wife supervises every penny of my salary, and I must confess she's a financial wizard.

"To get a little spending money I occasionally play poker. When I win, I go to the Five-and-Ten and buy tools. The last two or three times I've been a steady loser at the game.

"I read your column regularly and see that you sometimes tell women how they can earn a little pin money. Do you know of any way in which a man can make a little money on the side? My position as a bank clerk precludes my cutting grass, delivering groceries from a chain store, cleaning back yards, washing cars or cleaning furnaces.

"I note that the despairing often sign themselves 'Anxious' in letters to you, so I'll sign mine

"Anxious and Then Some."

The law journal mentioned above states that a six-footer left his frail little wife an enormous pair of trousers, saying in his will: "She wore them in life; now she can wear them after my death."

Another married man bequeathed an estate to his wife, "provided she would walk to the market on each anniversary of my death to read a confession that if her tongue had been shorter, her husband's life would have been longer." Another down-trodden male left a legacy "to Elizabeth, whom through foolish fondness, I married, and who in return has not spared, most unjustly, to accuse me of every crime of human nature, save highway robbery."

Attention, ladies! You are at liberty to jump into the arena and defend yourselves in this column.

Fashions as Seen Now In New York City

Manhattan summer is in full swing. Residents and visitors alike fall into the stride of Metropolitan life and all its varied activities. Prolonged luncheons in cool garden restaurants; tennis or badminton in apartment courts; bus-riding on Riverside drive; or window-shopping on Fifth avenue, fill idle hours while business goes on as usual.

On the Avenue.

The visitor who comes to New York to take in the sights will find summer dress not only interesting, but full of the most outrageous contradictions of a fashion-mad town. Strolling along the avenue recently a ninety-degree afternoon, the following picture presented itself:

Girls in bold black and white printed dresses, one wearing a pair of short gloves made of the same print and no hat; others wearing cartwheels of black straw; white Celanese jersey "coolies" from California — which are two-piece dresses bordered with bright red, worn with red leather California sandals. Sheer navy pleated dresses worn with natural colored leghorn hats. A heavy-looking all-white basket weave wool suit with black patent leather sandals and black Milan brimmed hat. A light gray flared woolen skirt topped by a longish Kelly green flannel coat and worn with bright green platform-sandals bordered in orange. One woman in all black except for white gloves, was wearing a pleated three-tiered black dress, ankle-length, with large black hat. Lots of spectator sports dresses without hats are worn with brown-and-white classic summer pumps, and just as many appear with colored Celanese rayon or wool knitted turbans. A three-piece blue tweed ensemble with a long cape, and blue straw hat stops on to a bus. White Celanese jersey blouses are worn with dark suit skirts and dark hats to match. Frilled organdie blouses appear with navy suits and scooped-brim hats with crispy veils in bright colors. The older woman invariably in a jacket dress of small print or plain navy or black sheer with a small hat trimmed with flowers.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

IT WAS only for the fraction of a second that I held the conviction of having seen Stephen Redfield recently in another character.

But the idea had not been wholly without basis. For, as I looked closely at him, I saw the reason for my momentary conjecture.

There was a strong resemblence between this leading man of Mary's and the young gangster who had attempted to take Carolyn away from Dicky and me, when we were escorting the rebellious girl to her home at Dalemont, and who later had tried to get Marion's letter from me.

The men were not "doubles" by any standard of comparisons. They might belong to the same family, I told myself.

Redfield Resembles Gangster

I wondered why I had not noticed it upon either of the occasions when I had seen the young gangster.

But I put all thought of it aside, dubbing it a mere coincidence, as I forced my lips to smile and my eyes to feign interest, in answer to Stephen Redfield's elaborate greeting.

"I am so glad you have come back to us," he was saying. "I was so afraid you had vanished completely, although Mary assured us you would return. But she doesn't always keep her promises. I have found that out."

"Oh, Steve, you simply slay me!" she gurgled. "And don't you dare to tell me that's dated, for they're using it again. I always keep my promises to everybody. I never break one. Indeed, I'm famous for that. And I've proved it even now: I've brought Auntie Madge back to the party, even though she was fairly swooning from fatigue."

A stealthy glance across the room showed me that Noel's figure, suddenly stiffened at Redfield's words, had relaxed again at Mary's answering sally. Then I brought my attention back to Stephen Redfield.

"Either Mary is lying in her teeth, Mrs. Graham," he said, "in which case you ought to take off your slipper immediately, or you have made a most miraculous recovery."

"Isn't she a marvel?" Mary chimed in. "I'm thinking of taking her over to the Medical Society and labeling her 'Exhibit A,' or is that what only the lawyers do?"

Madge Meets Mary's Guests

Her gurgling laugh at her own absurdity was so infectious that both Stephen Redfield and I echoed it, then Mary indicated a comfortable chair against the wall back of us.

"Come along Auntie Madge," she said, "and ensconce yourself in that. Don't you love that word? Steve, run along and round up some of those people who've been fairly panting to meet the author."

"Mary!" I protested, but to no effect, for she inexorably put me in the chair as impressively as if she had been seating a queen upon a throne. Then, standing at my side, she presented with equal ceremony the men and women whom Stephen Redfield brought over to us.

Only once did she depart from her grandiose role, and then she almost upset my risibles as well. Between the departure of one gushing guest and the arrival of another, she whispered hastily to me.

"You're going to be a great lady tonight if I have to stuff a ramrod down your back. And just look how my pap-in-law is eating it up!"

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, July 9

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AN EVENTFUL and memorable day is forecast by the interesting chain of benefic planetary aspects. Romance is likely to be paramount in the day's adventures, with sudden and dramatic visitations of warming and probably sentimental culmination, with the emotions on the qui vive. Business also may share this expansive and thrilling commotion, with sudden events of a most propitious nature materializing. It may be legacy, gift or other valuable windfall, promising future security and sound foothold.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year of great and surprising adventure and achievement, with the business, emotional and intellectual faculties under high tension and surprising if not dramatic denouements. There may be sudden wealth, enhanced investments, bequest or other unexpected gain, to put the future and its gratifications under enduring and stable bases. Romance looms large.

A child born on this day should have many sound and extraordinary talents, sustained by fine intellectual and emotional qualities, assuring it a successful, happy, romantic and influential life.

Nip In Waist Line, Girls, Be Lovely

Some women, lucky creatures, stay slender all their lives. The trim, youthful figure stays as is until the weight of the years bends the shoulders. The majority of women get a bit heavier along in the forties, those who don't are the ones who start early to ward off adipose tissue by minding their groceries and taking sufficient exercise to keep the muscles strong and resilient.

Fat creeps up on one. It is a mean, insidious foe, and it is sly. A few pounds don't mean anything. But a few more added and the upholstery game is on. If you can catch adipose tissue when it is young, you can make away with it. The 100-year war comes when it has reinforcements. Then you have to diet and work it off. If you don't give it the kind of food it likes, it goes off and dies. Keep on piling on sweets, starches and fats and it will multiply, putting on curves where you don't want them. Always it is inclined to form settlements on the waistline.

Madame Fashion seldom gives the plumptitudinous girls a break. She designs for the ideal figure. So the round lady might as well go in for a figure revolution, shuck off the excess baggage, conform to the pleasing, reedy lines that grace the fashion pages.

All that is required is determination.

Arms and legs are bound to get a certain amount of exercise, unless a woman is lazy, or has a sit-down job. It is the torso that needs punishment-bending, twisting, stretching. Many a heavyweight works hard but the muscle work is not centered. Get the waistline down and everything will be as right as rain. Center your acrobatics on the equator and the silhouettes will gradually become slenderized.

Take a careful measurement of waist, hips and thighs; then you will know if you are making progress and will be encouraged. Make up your mind that you're going to stick to a daily routine, at a certain hour. Professional athletes can do pretty much as they please about weight. But they work. So must you if you are going to join our waist-reducing class.

Lie on the floor on your back, body straight, the feet placed under a heavy piece of furniture, hands above the head. Lift slowly to sitting position, touching the calves of the legs with the fingertips. Lower the body slowly. Not easy at first.

Stand with the feet five or six inches apart, hands on hips, chest high. Take a deep breath, bend forward from the hips, back to first position, then do a back swing as far as you can. Pulls on the muscles of the midsection like all get out.

Another exercise: the position the same as in the foregoing one. Turn to the right, then to the left and repeat, pivoting at the waistline.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

MANUFACTURING A TRICK

Sometimes a hand looks as if it will produce some exact number of tricks—no more and no less. Any amount of study to produce an additional one by ordinary means, of suit establishment, discarding, ruffing, finessing etc., seems hopeless, and there is no possible squeeze or lead-throwing end-play in sight. It is then up to the declarer to draw on his knowledge of unusual plays and coups, or else his own talents to figure out one. By so doing, he may produce the most satisfying result possible—making of a contract which at first seemed doomed.

Yes, that wild streak of 16 consecutive rubbers belonging to this fortunate writer was doomed to end. An evening of rubbers was arranged with Lee Hazen, national masters champion, his brilliant wife and Willard S. Karn, first winner of the individual championship and first man formally ranked as the top player nationally over ten years ago. Pretty capable company. We decided to pivot by rubbers. Mrs. Hazen pulled the 17th rubber through for us. Then we sat North when this hand was dealt, each side having a game and Mr. Hazen being in the South.

The club A was led and ruffed, and the spade A laid down, disclosing the bunched trumps. Now you would say offhand that, if you took four rounds of trumps in the dummy, finessing twice against West, plus five diamond tricks, you would get a total of only ten tricks where 11 were needed. But not so.

To the third trick, the spade 8 was finessed, a second club ruffed, then the spade J finessed and the K laid down, dropping the last trump South having ruffed twice, was out of trumps when the K was played, so a heart was discarded on it. There was nothing to do but run the five diamonds and give up two hearts at the end. Not a hard hand to play, but a pretty finish. That made 18 straight rubbers, with the 19th coming up.

Dictates of Fashion Must Be Considered

By MAX FACTOR, Jr.
Hollywood Make-Up Specialist
Writing For INS.

HOLLYWOOD—Not every woman can advantageously follow every new dictate of fashion.

This is true of fashions in clothes, coiffures, make up, or the accessory grooming which may supplement any of these.

Thus it is that if the new costume fashions of a season are originally created only with a tall and stately model in mind, the women of average or less than average stature are frequently unable to follow this dress mode with any advantage to their appearances. Very often the costume lines which flatter the tall and stately girls are not ones which will serve the same purpose for an appreciably shorter person.

Nor will a fashionable new lipstick color, if it is created in only one "stylish" shade, be of glamorous advantage to any and all women. There can be no one lipstick shade which will serve equally well for blonde, brunette, redhead, and brownette. In any lipstick color scheme, there must be different shades to complement each of the natural complexion and hair color combinations.

This is equally true of face powder and rouge. There is no one shade of either powder or rouge which can be effectively used by all women, no matter if this single cosmetic shade has in some manner become established as the "fashionable" one of the moment. Such a shade can be correctly and glamorously fashionable for whichever of the blonde, brunette, redhead or brownette types of feminine beauty it may happen to correctly complement, but it can't appear to advantage on any other type.

Nor can one style of lipstick pattern be presented to appearance advantage by all women. Joan Crawford and Lucille Ball, for instance, both offer very distinctive lip rouge outlines. On these ladies, these individualized patterns are a beauty asset. But unless the natural contours of your mouth, together with the ensemble of your other facial features, very closely approximate those of one of these two stars, copying the style of their lipstick pattern won't be effective on you.

There was recently evident a revival of the Marlene Dietrich cheek pattern style, with women attempting to duplicate the interesting effect of Miss Dietrich's distinctively high-boned and hollow cheeks on themselves through the illusion of rouge.

This was all very well for those whose facial contours and structure somewhat resembled those of this star. But when such rouge patterns were attempted by women with definitely round, roly-poly faces, the result was ludicrous.

There are scientific appearance rules, which effectively cover the patterning of cheek rouge with a different pattern being prescribed for the round, square, oval, and oblong facial types. If you would make the most of your beauty don't violate these rules.

HERE'S TEXT OF FDR MESSAGE ABOUT ICELAND

Tells Legislators U. S. Navy Forces Are Replacing British on Isle.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The text of President Roosevelt's special message on the occupation of Iceland follows:

"I am transmitting herewith for the information of the Congress a message I received from the prime minister of Iceland on July 1st and the reply I addressed on the same day to the prime minister of Iceland in response to this message.

"In accordance with the understanding so reached, forces of the United States Navy have today arrived in Iceland in order to supplement, and eventually to replace, the British forces which have until now been stationed in Iceland in order to insure the adequate defense of that country.

"As I stated in my message to the Congress of Sept. 3 last regarding the acquisition of certain naval and air bases from Great Britain in exchange for certain over-age destroyers, considerations of safety from overseas attack are fundamental.

"The United States cannot permit the occupation by Germany of strategic outposts in the Atlantic to be used as air or naval bases for eventual attack against the Western Hemisphere. We have no desire to see any change in the present sovereignty of those regions. Assurance that such outposts in our defense frontiers remain in friendly hands is the very foundation of our national security and of the national security of every one of the independent nations of the new world.

"For the same reason, substantial forces of the United States have now been sent to the bases acquired last year from Great Britain in Trinidad and in British Guiana in the south in order to forestall any pincers movement undertaken by Germany against the Western Hemisphere. It is essential that Germany should not be able successfully to employ such tactics through sudden seizure of strategic points in the South Atlantic and in the North Atlantic.

"The occupation of Iceland by Germany would constitute a serious threat in three dimensions:

"The threat against Greenland and the northern portion of the North American Continent, including the islands which lie off it.

"The threat against all shipping in the North Atlantic.

"The threat against the steady flow of munitions to Britain—which is a matter of broad policy clearly approved by the Congress.

"It is therefore imperative that the approaches between the Americas and those strategic outposts, the safety of which this country regards as essential to its national security, and which it must therefore defend, shall remain open and free from all hostile activity or threat thereof.

"As commander-in-chief I have consequently issued orders to the navy that all necessary steps be taken to insure the safety of communications in the approaches between Iceland and the United States, as well as on the seas between the United States and all other strategic outposts.

"This government will insure the adequate defense of Iceland with full recognition of the independence of Iceland as a sovereign state.

"In my message to the prime minister of Iceland I have given the people of Iceland the assurance that the American forces sent there would in no way interfere with the internal and domestic affairs of that country, and that immediately upon the termination of the present international emergency all American forces will be at once withdrawn, leaving the people of Iceland and their government in full and sovereign control of their own territory."

START WORK ON LAST PART OF VIADUCT JOB

City Workmen Close Mulberry Street Bridge To Finish Resurfacing Project.

Completion of the resurfacing of the Mulberry street viaduct was started yesterday afternoon, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton announced that the bridge would be closed for traffic for several days.

One-half of the surface was improved in May as an experiment. Workers replaced old timbers and surfaced the viaduct with asphalt. The project was undertaken to eliminate the continuous noise from loose planking on the bridge.

Crafton said that the experiment had proven successful and that the rest of the viaduct would be similarly treated. Previous attempts to prevent the rattle by applying metal stirrups to the underside of the bridge were unsuccessful.

Work on putting a top surface on four other city streets is nearing completion. Sealer coats have already been placed on Dorian and Bowman streets and Walter avenue and will be laid on Rhein avenue tomorrow.

The project for widening and improving Sturges avenue between Cline and Lexington avenues has been delayed, Crafton explained, until a conduit under the street can be removed.

Workers have widened and graded the street and have begun setting curbstone. The street should be ready for its concrete coating within a week and its asphalt topping in less than three weeks.

Hits Drain on Water Supply by Stores

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

MY FAVORITE summer night club is the new Monte Carlo "Beach"—for decor, food, and John Kirby's music, and the shy little coloratura who sings swing songs. Loulie Jeanne, a Southern belle, she is, and I heard about her weeks before I saw her. I ran into Agent "Doc" Bendar at Sardi's one lunchtime and he mentioned a little girl from below the Mason-Dixon line who sang in a way he had never heard before. He employed the term "sensational," and I went back to my spaghetti, because I had heard that word before.

Dorothy Kilgallen

It seems she had come into the candy-striped Cloop on Swing street one evening, and got up and stood by the piano while Cy Walter played, and sang a few songs in a way that Doc, who has heard everything, had never heard before.

John LaTouche was there that night, too, and Vernon Duke and Vivienne Segal and Ethel Merman. They all said they, too, had never heard anyone sing quite like Loulie Jeanne.

At this point in the story I became a little over-absorbed in my spaghetti, and I seem to have lost a bridge in the tale, but at any rate Doc encountered Felix Ferry, proprietor of Monte Carlo and proprietor-to-be of the Beach, and mentioned Loulie Jeanne, including the word sensational. Ferry auditioned Loulie Jeanne—she sang 17 songs, "sensational," said Bendar—and hired her.

On the afternoon before the Beach opened, I chanced to be buying some notions in a swank salle de couture where if you have the right kind of figure they will sell you something to cover your bones for $350, and I encountered Mr. Ferry sitting on a gray velvet chair looking nervously like a gentleman in a film about Paris directed by Ernest Lubitsch. Without waiting for me to lift my eyebrow, Mr. Ferry confided that he was selecting a dress for his singer to wear on opening night. He seemed to be having a little trouble.

Then it was I met Loulie Jeanne. She was in one of the gray mirrored rooms opposite Mr. Ferry's gray velvet chair in the aisle, and she was standing looking at herself in a yellow and red printed evening dress that was cut down to here in front, and from which all un-necessary cloth had been cut away around the middle.

The vendeuse was telling her how divine it was, and every now and then three or four models and assistant vendeuses from other departments would peek in and say "divine, simply heavenly," but Loulie Jeanne just stood there with her hands crossed in front of her as if she were wearing a too-small bathing suit on a too-bright day, and Loulie Jeanne was shaking her head.

"Ah cain't weah this," she was saying. "A'm afraid to take a deep breath in it. Ah feels nyude. Ah couldn't sing a note."

"Darling," said the vendeuse, "unless they can see you've got sex appeal it won't matter if you sing like Lily Pons."

"Honest, honey?" said Loulie Jeanne.

"Honest," said the vendeuse.

I was thinking of that the next night when the Beach opened and Loulie Jeanne stepped up to the microphone to sing. As she opened her mouth, the microphone went dead, and none of the customers in two thirds of the room could hear whether she was sensational or not.

It was a mighty good thing for Loulie Jeanne's career that she was wearing the red and yellow printed dress cut down to here in front, and from which all unnecessary cloth had been cut away around the middle.

I can think of no one on or off Broadway who is absent-minded in quite such a thorough and delightful way as Benny Goodman, the bandleader. There is nothing absent-minded about him when he is fingering the black stick with the silver trimmings, but at other times Benj gets so far out of the world that you can talk to him across a table and get the sensation that you might as well be talking to some one in Bankok, Siam, without benefit of the long distance phone.

Only the other evening Benny was sitting with another lad and two ladies in a popular nitery, when one of the girls took a notion to repair her cosmetic job and signalled the other lass to accompany her to the powder room. As they arose she turned to Benny and said, "Will you excuse us for a few minutes?"

"Why certainly," said Benny, affably. And with that he got up and walked away from the table.

A night club improvement noticeable of late is the virtually complete absence of the flower purveyor. If this keeps up, people are going to start enjoying themselves! . . . I don't like wine-colored ties and handkerchiefs with white dinner jackets. . . . Must be awful to be a sensitive baseball player. The way the fans boo!

ASKS PROBE OF COMPLAINTS ON MARKET QUOTA

Editor, Farmer Take Request To Washington; Attorney Threatens Suit.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE —Amid growing protests in Ohio against the government's new wheat marketing quota system, a newspaper editor and a farmer went to Washington today to ask an investigation of the complaints.

Howard S. Harper, editor of the Washington Court House Record-Herald, said he would request Secretary of Agriculture Wickard to send a representative to attend a scheduled mass meeting of farmers here Thursday night "so he better could understand the feeling and temper of the protesting men." Harper was accompanied to the capital by Roy Hagler, a Fayette county farmer.

At the same time, Webb Clark, attorney for the newly-formed farmers' protective association, said he would file in federal court at Dayton this week a suit challenging constitutionality of the marketing system, which imposes a 49-cents-a-bushel penalty on farmers exceeding their quota.

Harper said he was going to Washington only in an effort to "pour oil on troubled waters."

"Since it is government policy to send mediators, conciliators and observers to investigate labor disputes when they get out of hand," he said, "I feel that the farmers are entitled to similar consideration because agriculture is one of the biggest industries in the country."

The farmers' protective association, Clark said, was formed expressly to fight the marketing system, which was approved by a 37-state referendum in May.

"We have from 1,500 to 2,500 members in each agricultural county, and the movement still is growing," Clark asserted.

"The organization is composed of small farmers, who cannot even feed their surplus wheat to their stock without penalty, and we expect to stress that point in court."

The marketing system, against which a majority of Ohio farmers voted, is designed to keep the price of wheat up by limiting the amount marketed. Under the program, a farmer who has planted more than his alloted acreage of wheat may store it, market it under penalty of 49 cents a bushel or turn it over to the government for charitable purposes. The stored wheat may be applied against next year's quotas.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley daily makes many adjustments of his window awnings to keep out the sun's rays. Yesterday, however, he felt his office growing warm in spite of the lowered awnings. Investigation revealed that the awning was afire. Firemen extinguished the flames which cracked the window and guessed that a cigaret tossed from offices above had started the blaze. Kelley today celebrated his birthday and exchanged greetings with County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe who also celebrated his birthday. Neither auditor would volunteer his age but both admitted they were not eligible for the draft.

The sound of the workman's hammer will echo through the Y. W. C. A from now on until the annual summer renovation program replaces committee meetings and club activities. Several rooms are being re-painted and papered, some of the furniture has gone to the upholsterer, and repairs seem to be general. Meanwhile, the staff is standing by, according to Miss Norma Sheer, girls' program director, doing as much as possible to outline the program for fall before vacations start in August.

Politics is a funny business and not quite as important as many other matters. G. A. "We would never think of starting anything until after the World Series is over."

CITY SAYS AIR CONDITIONING PERILS SYSTEM

Crafton Says Regulations May Be Ordered; Hot Weather Doubles Consumption.

Regulation of the use of city water for air conditioning units in down town business places was threatened today by Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton because of the heavy draw on the city water supply during the summer months.

During the recent hot spell the city waterworks department was called upon to nearly double its water supply mostly because of the air-conditioning machinery, according to Crafton.

Stores and restaurants using air-conditioning employ city water for cooling purposes. In the majority of cases, however, the water when used is thrown into the sewer system. This practice, according to Crafton, works a hardship on the waterworks department and other consumers by reducing the potential supply.

Crafton, who has the power to regulate the rates of water supplied by the city, indicated that a new rate might be fixed for water used for air conditioning.

A few of the stores maintain their own wells and do not disturb the water supply. Nearly a dozen, however, draw directly from the water lines. Crafton said that three extra pumps had to be put into action during the recent heat wave and that the supply had to be increased from more than 3,000,000 gallons daily to almost 5,500,000.

If Crafton should take a regulatory action, stores affected would either have to pay higher rates for water used for air-conditioning or adapt their systems so that city water would be used over again in the units. The adaption could be made by installing a refrigerating system or a small pump to keep a small supply of water in constant circulation.

FACE PERMIT REVOCATIONS

Attorney General Rules Liquor Dealers Must Pay Up BUC Contributions.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Approximately 500 Ohio liquor permit holders today faced a cancellation of their permits unless they pay delinquent contributions to the state unemployment compensation fund in a hurry.

Att. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert ruled in an opinion yesterday to Harry E. Hawley, head of the state liquor control board, that contributions to the bureau of unemployment compensation are actually excise taxes.

Herbert informed the liquor board that failure to pay the BUC contributions is sufficient cause for suspension or revocation of a liquor permit held by the operator of a liquor establishment.

It was understood that the request for the opinion was made after the discovery that there were widespread delinquencies in BUC payments by liquor permit holders.

In another opinion to Frederick L. Orum, Harrison county prosecutor, Herbert held that elective county officials are entitled to four full years of salary regardless of the fact that their actual terms may be a few days more or less than four calendar years. The question arose over payment of compensation to a retiring county clerk and his successor.

107 GIRL SCOUTS ENROLLED AS ANNUAL CAMP SESSION OPENS

Mansfield Girl Scouts initiated their new camp on the J. H. Nichols farm, seven miles southwest of Mansfield, today, by turning out 107 strong, the full camp enrollment, for the first of a six-day camping season spread over a three weeks' period.

The Scouts set up their unit homes, 20 or more girls to a unit, and discussed future activities with their respective leaders.

Two counselors are in charge of each unit and the program will vary in each case to conform to the desire of the campers.

Today wood piles were stacked by the unit emphasizing different kinds of fire building, spatter prints of leaves were made by a second unit, while another manufactured first aid kits out of match boxes.

Each Scout provided a basket lunch at noon and milk was delivered to the camp in time for the meal. Hereafter the respective units will cook their own lunch as a part of the outdoor cooking program.

Occasional threats of rain did not dampen the campers' enthusiasm for each unit has been provided with a tent. One group will use the log cabin on the farm for shelter in case of rain.

Camp will be held each Tuesday and Thursday from 9:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. for the three-week period and the Scouts will be transported daily to and from the camp site by parents and Girl Scout council members, according to Miss Eleanor Bond, Girl Scout executive secretary.

This is the first time that camp has been held outside of the city and the new location was made possible through the generosity of Mrs. J. H. Nichols.

Counselors of the 8 to 15-year old campers are: Mrs. G. R. Masqueher, Mrs. M. Lee Hundley, Mrs. Grandin Godley, Mrs. Paul James, Mrs. Paul Salyer, Mrs. Alvin Kreig and the Misses Helen McCaushn, Dorothy Gump, Patty Bancroft and Betsy Cave.

Investigation into circumstances which caused the death of Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Springer, 25, Mansfield mother, who was killed Saturday night when struck by a car that mounted the curb of the sidewalk where she was walking, was resumed today by Prosecutor Harold Lutz.

Three witnesses were to be called this afternoon, Lutz said, adding that he doubted if testimony could be completed today.

Lucas To Debate Water System Ills At Town Meeting

LUCAS — An emergency situation concerning the water works system of the village of Lucas will be laid before a public mass meeting of the voters and real estate owners of the corporation Wednesday evening, it was announced here today by Mayor Louis M. Smith.

Confronted for the past several months with the necessity of making extensive repairs on the pipe lines supplying water to Lucas residents, with only meagre funds available for such an improvement, the village council and board of public affairs have decided to lay the entire problem before the citizens.

Although installed only about six years ago, the water mains are in such poor condition that bad leaks occur almost daily in various sections of the village.

While residents of the village are still receiving an ample supply of water, breaks in the main line leading from the supply reservoir high on a hill south of Lucas are so serious as to cause considerable local apprehension of a water shortage in case of a fire or drought.

Wednesday evening's mass meeting, which will resemble an old-time New England "Town Meeting," will be held in the school auditorium at 8:30 p. m., according to Mayor Smith.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Hollywood lives under the dollar sign, and most of the hands in town are stretching up to grab hold.

"Get my salary up," is the actor's plea to his agent.

"More dough," cries the suddenly popular comic.

"Oh, money, money!" is a mammoth community theme song.

And yet you'd be surprised, this being so—as it is everywhere else on earth — that there are actually people in Hollywood who deliberately skip the big money. For a purpose.

There's a girl here now (I can't give her name because it would spoil her plan) who is working for $18 a week as a secretary in one of the small studios. Until recently she was an assistant director on movie and air shows, drawing a handsome stipend and worth it. Her shows closed. She had an offer —connected with movies but not on the inside—of a $100-a-week job. She turned it down for the $18. Inside, she figures, she can work back to her old spot, and even beyond. Her small job is a long-term investment. She's doing now what she used to do five years ago at another studio. Getting the job wasn't through pull, either. She had to have a reference for her secretarial prowess. She got one—from the girl who had been her own secretary when she was in the money!

* * *

Young David Hempstead is a producer today. Made "Kitty Foyle" among other movies. A few years ago Hempstead had a comfortable berth at a good salary, but he felt he needed more experience. He chucked his job, and worked around in various studio departments for little or nothing. He got what he wanted. It isn't alfalfa any more.

A decade ago a young actor who had been a popular star decided he wanted to stay in pictures longer than acting would let him. He was making $2,500 a week at the time. He kissed it goodbye, and started in as a writer at $125 a week. Today Glenn Tryon, who was popular as Laura LaPlante's co-star and on his own, is an associate producer.

"I wish," says Vic Alderson, the Johns Park tennis maestro. "that you would write a piece sometime that would create a bit of interest in this game of tennis."

"And what sort of a piece would you suggest?" I ask him.

"Well, I liked some of those pieces you wrote about playing golf with different people who are pretty good, and how bad a trimming you took, and I thought maybe if we could get you out on a tennis court——"

* * *

"Whoa, there, Mr. Alderson," I protest, "it's been 20 years since I swung a tennis bat, and you're not going to get me swinging 'em again at my age.

"I've no doubt at all that you have any number of little boys and girls out there at Johns Park who could give me any number of love set trimmings, but—

* * *

"Think of my dignity, Mr. Alderson. You wouldn't have me, at my age, dashing madly about and falling on my nose trying to retrieve those drives on the base line and chop shots at the net."

* * *

"Well," says he, "there are still any number of people who seem to think that tennis is a sissy game and I would like to set them right on that score."

"So you would like to run me dizzy just to prove the game is not for sissies? Why Mr. Alderson! I'm surprised at you!"

"Oh, no, I didn't mean it that way," he apologizes

* * *

"That's all right, then," I tell him, "and we can go on from there. And besides I am dizzy enough anyhow, without running here and there and around and about trying to hit a little ball with a starved banjo-bat.

"So I will be very happy to assure one and all that tennis is not a game for sissies, although they do say 'love' when they mean nothing at all, and ejaculate such a rugged term as 'deuce' when they mean the game is tied up.

"No, I understand the game requires any amount of speed and skill and strength and stamina and eyesight and timing and all those things I lost one by one along my merry way to old age."

* * *

"But I am older than you," he retorts, "and I have been playing for 20 years and can still get out and go on that tennis court."

Only 20 years, Vic? Then you haven't been playing long enough, have you, to know that good old Gunga Din was the greatest base line doubles player the world has ever known? For, as Kipling relates it:

* * *

"If we charged, or broke, or cut,
"You could bet your bloomin' nut,
"He'd be waitin' fifty paces right-flank, rear."

And did you know that good old Gunga originated the abbreviated tennis togs of today?

"For the uniform he wore,
"It wasn't much before,
"And rather less than arf of that behind."

Starts Deal For Conn-Farr Bout

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Ray Alvis, Washington promoter, said today that he has started negotiations for a 15-round bout between Tommy Farr, former British heavyweight champion, and Billy Conn.

* * *

Alvis, who operated with Mike Jacobs in staging the recent Buddy Baer-Joe Louis title match in Washington, said Conn's manager, Johnny Ray, has agreed to the bout and that Farr is expected in the United States within a week.

* * *

The match, if arranged, will be held for the benefit of the British war relief fund and probably will take place in August or September.

DI MAGGIO'S ALL-STAR RECORD NOT SO GOOD

DETROIT —(INS)— Joe DiMaggio, centerfielder for the New York Yankees who has established an all time hitting streak by punching out safe blows in 48 consecutive games, has not fared so well in all-star games, a glance at the records revealed today.

Joe, who will start in today's ninth annual major league all star tussle in Briggs Stadium, has made only three hits in 21 times at bat in the five all star games in which he has appeared.

Al Hager Blasts Record

Shoots 63 at Westbrook, 29 on Second Nine.

YOUNG AL HAGER still has his golf clubs today, and a bewildered look.

The bewildered look is explainable. But why his red hot clubs didn't burn up in his hands is a mystery.

* * *

For Hager yesterday clipped three strokes from a seven-year record for the 18-hole layout at Westbrook Country club, held by Pro Jock Collins, and cut two strokes from the second nine record, also seven years old and held by Collins.

* * *

Hager went around in 34-29—63. Collins' old record for the 18 was 66, and for the last nine, 31. His old record for the first nine still stands at 31, but the two 31's for the 18 weren't put together.

Hager started his tour unsensationally enough with three birdies, five pars and a bogey on the first nine.

* * *

And then his sticks blistered his hands as he smacked a par on No. 10, sank a nine-iron on No. 11 for an eagle two, made the next three holes in par, birdie, birdie, hit the pin with his tee shot on No. 15 and sank his putt for a birdie two, then made a conventional par on No. 16, and wound up with birdies on the final two holes.

* * *

Al's card for the 18, witnessed by Tommy Holda, Nick Komjenovich and Jimmy Chamberlain, follows:

Par	445	444	434	—36
Hager	335	443	534	—34
Par	444	453	453	—36—72
Hager	424	342	442	—29—63

"I'd kinda like to have that card back after you're through with it," Al grinned as he presented the evidence at The News-Journal office this morning.

GAME POSTPONED

FREMONT — (AP) — The Ohio State League's all-star game probably will be played next week, officials said, after wet grounds forced postponement of the contest last night. Fremont's pace-setting nine will clash with a squad picked from other clubs in the league.

Picks Star Of All-Stars

Likes Billy Herman In Seven of Eight Games.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Scattered paragraphs containing scattered thoughts:

Don't be surprised if the Louis-Nova fight goes to either Detroit or Chicago. Promoter Mike Jacobs thinks both towns are ready to support a heavyweight title bout. He recalls that Louis vs. Braddock drew $770,000 in Chicago and that Detroit paid $360,000 to see the second battle between Louis and Bob Pastor. Jacobs is going west in the next two or three days and there may be some action this week.

* * *

The score stands five to three in favor of the American League in the All-Star games that have been played. If you are looking for the star of the All-Stars, how about Billy Herman, Brooklyn second baseman? He has appeared in seven of the eight games, has made nine hits, scored three runs and batted a neat .429. Mell Ott has done all right, too. In seven games he has scored two runs, made five hits and batted .313.

* * *

An attempt will be made at Ebbets field tonight to break Mike Jacobs' monopoly on big-time boxing in New York. Chick Meehan, former football coach of New York university, is head of a group that will put on fights in the Brooklyn Dodgers' baseball park. The chief obstacle in the way of the new group is that Jacobs has most of the top-flight fighters signed to exclusive contracts. Headliners on the first card are Tami Mauriello and Steve Mamakos.

* * *

The man who caught the homer that Joe DiMaggio hit to break Wee Willie Keeler's consecutive game stream was Sam Strumola, who was sitting in the left field stands at Yankee stadium. So far he has rejected all offers for the ball, including one for $25 cash. Strumola said DiMaggio offered him two other baseballs and a pass to a game in the stadium, but he turned that one down, too.

* * *

The Cincinnati Reds may not be doing so hot in the league race, but Manager Bill McKechnie is living up to his reputation of being the smartest handler of pitchers in baseball. When the remainder of his staff failed to live up to pre-season expectations he brought young Elmer Riddle along nicely. So far the kid has won nine and lost nine. That three-hit shutout he pitched against the Cardinals the other day is the kind of pitching that brought the pennant to the Reds in 1939 and 1940.

DERRINGER FILES SUIT FOR EYE INJURY

TAMPA, Fla. — (AP) — Paul Derringer, ace pitcher for the World champion Cincinnati Reds, seeks $65,000 damages in a suit filed against an electrical supply store here, claiming his playing efficiency has been "greatly reduced" because of an injury to his eye allegedly received in the store last November.

Derringer's suit charges that Raybro Electric Supplies, Inc., "negligently and carelessly" placed a scaffolding inside the store and that he ran into it.

Dayton Star Takes Medal

Halted Five Times By Rain In Ohio Tourney.

AKRON, O.—(AP)—Officials delayed the start of first-round matches in the 2nd Ohio State women's golf tournament for two hours today because of torrential downpours which soaked the Portage Country club course during qualifying play.

* * *

Yesterday's competition, which was paced by Mrs. James Platt, Jr., of Dayton, with a sensational three-over-par 79, was stoped five times by rain. The storms finally caused postponement until today of a playoff for the 16th position.

* * *

Two Akron sharpshooters, Miss Gertrude Ballou and Mrs. Jake Searl, and a Dayton entry, Mrs. A. W. Sumpter, tied with 89's and battle for the right to oppose the defending champion, Miss Janet Shock, in a first-match battle. In seeking her third Ohio crown Miss Shock qualified with 85, rallying with a par 38 after a poor first-nine 47.

* * *

First to face the fire of the powerful-hitting Dayton champion was the Cleveland veteran, Mary K. Browne, who won the Ohio diadem in 1931. Miss Browne qualified with an 85.

* * *

Mrs. Platt heads the upper-bracket pairings, which are rated by far the toughest. Also in the upper-eight are Miss Dorothy Gardner, Steubenville's blond beauty and pre-meet favorite; Mrs. Neoma Copic of Toledo and Mrs. Thomas Weiskopf, the former Eva Shorb of Massillon.

Miss Gardner's first test pitted her against a Clevelander, Mrs. M. E. Lewis, who got in with an 87.

Match play will continue with 18-hole battles through Thursday. The 36-hole finals are scheduled Friday.

Pairings today include:

Mrs. James Platt, Jr., Dayton, (79) vs. Mary K. Browne, Cleveland, (85).

Martha Dakin, Lebanon, (83) vs. Dorothy Hicks, Cleveland, (87).

Neoma Copic, Toledo, (81) vs. Mrs. Thomas Weiskopf, Massillon, (86).

Dorothy Gardner, Steubenville, (84) vs. Mrs. M. E. Lewis, Cleveland, (87).

Sluggers Shine For Churchmen

Batsmen Collect 73 Runs In League Frays.

The heavy bombers went into action last night in church league battles as St. Luke's sank St. Matthew's 15-7, the Lutherans edged St. John's in a 15-13 fray and the Congregational club walloped the Baptists 15-8.

Bissman and Smith led St. Luke's attack, Bissman crashing through with a perfect night at bat, getting three for three. McVane and Redhair connected with four out of five apiece for St. Matthew's.

Wineland and Stone sparked the Lutheran attack while Uhlich was swatting three out of four for St. John's.

The trio of Osborn, Scott and Locke led the Congregational club's assault upon the Baptists. Burton led the losers with two out of three.

Feller will receive a trophy from the federation and a plaque from the Sporting News, baseball weekly, naming him the "player of 1940."

Bob's father will be among the guests of the Cleveland club at the night game as will 5,000 sandlot players.

Feller, Jeff Heath, Ken Keltner and Lou Boudreau were in Detroit today for the All-Star game. A few other Cleveland players attended but most of the squad came home after last night's exhibition game in Flint, Mich., with the Indians' farm club of the Michigan State league.

Flint took a 3 to 2 decision, touching Ken Jungels and Joe Krakauskas for eight hits while three hurlers limited the Redskins to five.

BUMMY DAVIS ENTERS HOSPITAL FOR TREATMENT

NEW YORK—(AP)—Al (Bummy) Davis, Brooklyn welterweight fighter, who was knocked out by Fritzie Zivic at the Polo Grounds last week, entered Kings county hospital for treatment today.

Davis is a private on leave from the Sixty-Ninth Coast Artillery. His face still was badly puffed from the effects of the fight.

Hospital attaches said the fighter's condition was fair, but that he would remain at least overnight pending diagnosis and treatment.

Feller Meets Wyatt In All-Star Battle

Indian Star and Former Tribe Hurler Tangle In Big Game

By GAYLE TALBOT

DETROIT—(AP)—The two finest talented teams in baseball, bar absolutely none, tear into each other at Briggs stadium today in the ninth annual all-star game between hand-picked specialists of the National and the American leagues.

The American league is supposed to have the more terrific hitters, the National league the slightly more clever pitchers. This partly is a hangover from the days when the American league had Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig to do its batting and the National league had Carl Hubbell and Diz Dean to do its pitching.

* * *

They are gone now, all of them. The Babe is retired and corpulent, and Gehrig is dead. Dean is a radio announcer. Hubbell is on the National league squad, but he is a veteran who pitched only two days ago and consequently cannot be counted upon for duty today.

* * *

The heroes of the first all-star game less than a decade ago mostly will be on the sidelines when the shooting starts today. That is how fast baseball changes and shifts. Yet the American league remained a strong favorite because the boys still respected its superior batting power.

The weather promised to be cool for this time of year, and clear. Briggs stadium figured to be comfortably filled with more than 50,000 fans.

Del Baker, manager-for-a-day of the American league "supers," chose Bobby Feller of Cleveland to lead off. As he explained, he would be a dope to do otherwise. Feller, with 16 victories and only four losses for the season, is baseball's greatest current pitcher.

For the National leaguers the lead-off pitcher promised to be Whit Wyatt, with a record of 13 won and four lost for Brooklyn. Rumors last night said that Wyatt did not feel so good, but Manager Bill McKechnie of the Nationals was counting on Whit nevertheless.

The score, up to today, was five victories for the American league against three for the Nationals in the all-star series. However, the Americans slugged their way to comparatively simple triumphs in the first three engagements and the Nationals have been doing all right since.

After Feller either had breezed through the first three innings of today's game, or, on the other hand, had got his bumps, Manager Baker intended to use Thornton Lee of the Chicago White Sox, a talented left hander. Beyond that, Baker refused to go.

Deacon McKechnie intended to use Bucky Walters as his second thrower and then trust to providence. Walters still is, for this writer's money, the best pitcher in baseball today when the chips are down — and no disrespect meant to Bobby Feller. Bobby probably would be the first to cast his vote for that, because Feller is that sort of boy.

Cherry Hills Baffles Pros

Ninety Seven Tee Off In P. G. A. Tourney.

DENVER—(AP)—Cherry Hills, rolling out against a backdrop of the Rockies, still is daring most of the professional golfing clan to give it a licking in tournament play.

A field of 97 professionals teed off yesterday, just five cracked the stubborn par 71 in the first leg of the P. G. A. tournament's 36-hole qualifying rounds for the Alex Smith diamond medal and a foothold in tomorrow's match play rounds for the 63 low scorers and defending champion Byron Nelson of Toledo.

Harry Bassler, blackhaired member of a California baseball playing family, and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, an Arkansan built like a No. 1 iron, guided the caravan into today's second trek with 68s.

A stroke back was Sam Snead, the sweet swinger from Hot Springs, Va.—his ailing back apparently forgotten—with 69.

Braced at 70 were two unknowns to most golf galleries—27-year-old George Fazio of Philadelphia and Bill Francis, a red-headed beanpole from Holidaysburg, Pa.

Little Ben Hogan, leading money earner of the year from Hershey, Pa., was tied at par 71, with tall Henry Ransom of Fort Worth, Texas.

Curb On Champs Erased

American Discards Rule on Strengthening Team.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—After two years, the silliest, most short-sighted and least sporting rule ever devised by the baseball people finally will come off the books at the end of this season, when the American League will go back to the traditional idea behind sports in this country and let the champion stay on top until a better team comes along. They're wiping out the nonsense perpetrated in 1939, prohibiting the pennant-winner from making trades except on waivers.

* * *

Assuming that baseball is sports as well as big business, that rule never should have been adopted and everybody, including the National League, knew it at the time.

* * *

The latter refused to have any part of it and the American tacitly admits its error in the dispatches from Detroit revealing that the magnates have decided to wipe out the only baseball legislation ever designed to stop one specific team.

Having failed to halt the Yankees on the ball field through four straight seasons, the owners got together and decided to do it in the meeting room and that rule resulted. Whether it stopped the Yankees is problematical, although they did fail to win the pennant last season, but it also has stopped the Detroit Tigers, who took the 1940 flag and will be lucky to finish in the first division this year.

They can't do anything about this now, of course, but they might have sooner, knowing in the spring that Hank Greenberg was headed for the draft, removing one man from their outfield and their biggest threat from the plate, and that Dick Bartell was about through at shortstop and Charlie Gehringer was an uncertainty for second base.

The New York club did not seem to be particularly hard hit, for what happened to the Yankees last year was more a psychological reaction to their pre-eminent position for so long and even if they had obtained First Baseman George McQuinn from the St. Louis Browns, as they would have but for the rule, they probably still would have faltered.

The cry at the time from some of the owners ran to the effect that the Yankees with all their money could reach out and buy nearly any player they might want, and something should be done to prevent their further strengthening and going on to more pennants. That was partly true, but also just so much parsley around the edges. The Yankees built a great club with a great organization while others were coasting along waiting for a pennant to climb the flag pole of its own accord.

* * *

In the interim, these owners have defended the rule every time it has been broached and killed an effort to have it rescinded a year ago because, action coming at that time right after the Yankees had slipped, would have impressed too strongly that they were gunning for the Yanks alone. So they let it lay for another year.

* * *

What the rule did and will do to the end of this season is prevent the champion from getting any talent by virtue of the fact that anybody worth having in the other league wouldn't be waived on. As we recall it, the Yanks got a pitcher who lasted a couple of weeks, and then went on back to bringing their guys up from the farm for this season, when they might have made trades, so it probably didn't fetter them a great deal.

M'Neill Draws Bye In Western Tourney

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Top rated entrants unlimber their racquets and start swatting today in the annual western tennis tournament at Woodstock Country club.

* * *

National Champion Don McNeill of Gambier, O., first seeded among the men, drew a first-round bye and won't play until 5 p. m. (CST) when he meets the winner of an afternoon match.

* * *

Other men down to play today include Bobby Riggs of Clinton, S. C., second-seeded; Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., seeded third; Billy Talbert of Cincinnati, seeded fourth; Gardner Larned of Chicago, seventh, and Harris Everett of Jacksonville, Fla., eighth.

Buckeye Trotter Equals Record

TOLEDO — (INS) — Harold Wilson, a brown horse owned by A. J. Stambaugh of Ada, O., today shared the 1 1-16 mile world trotting record of 2:11 with Dewey McKinney and Earl's Moody Guy after taking both heats of a fifth event, 17 class trot as grand circuit racing went into its second week at Fort Miami track last night.

Earl's Moody Guy equalled the record, previously held alone by Dewey McKinney, last Wednesday at the Toledo track. Dewey McKinney had held the mark for 15 years.

Ernie Smith drove Harold Wilson to the equalizer.

Ben White drove Frank Spencer, a chestnut colt, to a win in the night's feature race, a two-year-old trot for a purse of $1,120.

Henrich Marries His Nurse

One of the star outfielders on the New York Yankee club, Tommy Henrich, Massillon, O., boy, is pictured with his bride, the former Eileen O'Reilly, who nursed him when he was confined to a New York hospital with a knee injury some time ago. The two were married at the Paulist Fathers church in New York.

McKechnie Beefs To Fellow Pilots

DETROIT — (U.P.)—Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds and the National league all-stars today criticized his fellow National league pilots for their failure to vote for Elmer Riddle of the Reds a place on this year's picked team.

* * *

The cagey Scotchman said the managers overlooked one of the finest pitchers in the game when they declined to vote Riddle and his record of nine wins against no defeats to a spot in the senior circuit's squad for today's game with the American league.

* * *

The Redleg pilot cited the fact that Riddle has hurled 87⅓ innings in 17 different games and has been touched for only 37 hits and 21 runs, all earned. Riddle has held his opponents to a batting average of .211 and has beaten every team in the league except Pittsburgh, a team he hasn't worked against.

JOE TAKES VACATION WITH RING PUSH-OVER

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP) — Stopping off for some golf and fishing, Joe Louis will step into the comparative privacy of a boxing ring Friday night to do a number with Jimmy Robinson.

* * *

Burdened with marital and possible draft troubles, the champion is coming to Minnesota for a short vacation at the Aquatennial summer carnival. His problems are not expected to be increased any by the fistic date.

* * *

The bout is programmed officially as an "exhibition" and the boys will be wrapped up in big gloves. So Joe will be able to eat that chicken dinner either right before or right after the date.

LUCAS WANTS GAMES

Lucas Merchants, ball club want games for July 27 and Aug. 31 on the Lucas diamond. The Merchants next Sunday are playing the Manusfield Liberty Park team at Mansfield. Teams wishing to fill the open dates should write to Walter Pritchard at Lucas.

EXPERT ON TROTTERS SERIOUSLY ILL

TOLEDO — (AP) — Will Gahagan of Goshen, N. Y., secretary of the United States Trotting association and a recognized authority on standard-bred horses, was reported in "fair" condition today after suffering a heart attack en route to the grand circuit program at Fort Miami park last night.

The world's trotting record was equaled for the second time during the Toledo meeting of "The Grand" when Ernie Smith piloted Harold Wilson to a 2:11 mile in the 17 class pace last night. Earl's Moody Guy last week equaled the mark established by Bill McKinney. The featured event, the two-year-old trot, was won by Frank Spencer with Ben White at the reins.

Plan Honors For Association Vets

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Two veterans of the American Association will be honored by the league in pre-game ceremonies at the eighth annual all-star game at Nicollet Park, Minneapolis, July 16, President George Trautman announced today.

* * *

They are Thomas J. Hickey, the league's first president and now chairman of the board, and M. J. "Mike" Kelley, president of the Minneapolis club and the only active club official who has been in the circuit since it was organized in 1902.

* * *

Umpires for the all-star game, selected for the first time this year by the A. A. chapter of the Baseball Writers' association, are George Johnson, Ifai Weafer, Robert Austin and James Boyer. Johnson, serving his 28th year in the league, was a choice of 97 per cent of the scribes voting.

Ousted Hurler

JULIO BONETTI

Because he allegedly associated with gambling figures, Julio Bonetti, pitcher for the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league and formerly with the St. Louis Browns, has been placed on the ineligible list by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, following a two-month investigation. Bonetti denied that he ever had "thrown" a game.

SEEK PEACE

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(U.P.)—University of New Mexico co-eds rank peace for the United States just one-notch above their desire for a husband.

A test of 75 campus girls showed that they agreed United States "should remain in its own backyard and at the same time carry a big stick in the war situation."

They were "resigned" to seeing the boy-friend go to the army and wouldn't mind being drafted for industry themselves.

MART STEADY OVER NEWS OF ICELAND MOVE

Leading Issues Add Fractions as Optimism Follows Soviet Success.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — News of the United States occupation of Iceland failed to disturb the stock market today and leading issues added fractions to their advance of the market pending Washing-

While Wall Street derived some optimism from signs the Russians were stemming the Nazi sweep, there was a disposition to step carefully on the speculative side o fthe market pending Washington's next war move.

Aside from the swiftly changing foreign scene, market analysts found further hopeful indicators on the domestic business front.

Encouraging to recovery contingents was the summary of federal reserve member banks in 101 cities for the weed ended last Wednesday disclosing a jump in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of $70,000,000. It was one of the sharpest increases in this item since the defense program began to spur this form of credit.

A constructive interpretation also was placed on merchandising surveys confirming the high rate of public spending now under way throughout the nation.

OIL MOVES

Ickes Says Quantities Go To Coast To Halt Shortage.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Defense Oil Coordinator Harold L. Ickes said today that oil now is moving to the eastern seaboard in considerable quantities by rail and that coastwise tankers soon will increase their cargoes to help offset a threatened shortage.

The transfer to British service of 50 tankers which usually transport the east's petroleum supply from gulf ports is the cause of the present decline in reserves.

Ickes said the petroleum industry had acted "promptly" to utilize some 20,000 idle tank cars and that "already oil is moving to the affected area by this method for the first time in many years." About 4,000 cars now are in use, he said.

Three Claim They Are Widow Jones, But Maggie Wins

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—Mrs. Maggie Jones, of Athens, Ga., today became the legal "Widow Jones," after a decision by Judge Dudley M. Outcalt as to which of three contenders was rightfully the widow of the late Wilson Jones, negro.

The trouble began last week when Jones died and Cathryne Jones, who said she was his widow, turned the body over to Cora Jamison, undertaker, for burial.

Mrs. Hattie Jones then appeared and claimed to be the widow. She filed an injunction suit to prevent the burial and produced a marriage license issued in 1923.

Judge Outcalt declared her the legal widow and released the body to her. However, the funeral director refused to release the body and a contempt of court order was issued.

At the hearing of the contempt charge yesterday, Mrs. Maggie Jones put in her appearance and produced a marriage license issued in 1912.

"You're the legal widow," Outcalt ruled and dismissed the contempt charge and injunction suit.

TAKE OVER FOOD SURPLUS PLAN

Commodities to be Distributed by Welfare Department.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The state welfare department at the request of the federal government today took over supervision of the surplus commodities program in Ohio from the works project administration.

Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said the request was made because the major portion of persons receiving surplus commodities are helped by public aid programs under supervision of his department.

Named to supervise the program was Carl Graves of Columbus, administrative assistant in the welfare department.
